With the precision of a well-oiled machine with fine horses as ever have been assembled in Louisville and with as brilliant an audience as ever saw anything here on its first night, the Louisville Horse Show, given by the Kentucky Horse Show Society, opened its eighth annual exhibition last night. The quality of the horses shown, as well as the audience, in the minds of the management of the show, spell a week of success, and indicate they feel assured, that the Horse Show will go down in the history of Kentucky horsedom as the finest ever.

Interest in all the rings was close and although the awarding of some of the prizes was attended by unpleasant demonstrations on the part of certain crowds in the audience, all of them seemed to meet the approval of the horsemen who know and appreciate real reasons. There were some surprises and many close decisions, especially in some of the harness classes. The local classe, for the most part, were well filled, although, in the local runabout class for the Tavern Club cup, all but three of the eight entries failed to drive into the ring at the call of the bugle.

Lawrence Jones Begins Early.

Repeating the history of the first night of last year, Lawrence Jones finished the biggest winner of the first night, having two firsts, one second and one third to his credit, while Miss Emily Bedford, of Elm Villa, Green's Farms, Conn., was a close second with two firsts. Mr. Jones' great Poetry of Motion, in the three-gaited saddle class, was tied with the blue, as everybody expected, when the six entries in the class filed into the ring. He won over Ball Bros.' Gladys L., which was tied with the red, and Gayoso, a bold-going bay gelding, entered by Powhatan Wooldridge, and a horse which took the popular fancy. His Gallant Lad and Gallant Lord, in the harness pairs, took the first away from the two entries of C. W. Watson, which were given the next two places. It was in the local harness class that King Fashion was compelled to lag behind John H. Carpenter's Count and be content with the second tie, and in the local class for heavy harness horses he was beaten by Count again and by Mrs. Lytle H. Hudson's Dorothy, which won the blue.

Miss Bedford Wins With Hildred.

In the last class shown last night, and the class which was considered by those who know about horses to be the best of the night, Miss Bedford's Hildred, a grand chestnut mare, which has won twenty-five or more championships in the eight years of her life, was given the first place, with the entire approval of the audience, while Lord Baltimore, the Watson entry, which ran away with the honors in the same class last year, followed second, leaving the third place for George Watson's Emperor, a new horse in the Louisville show. Mr. Jones' two horses, Guy Fortune and Lord Randolph, which had been expected to do battle, were left without an honor.

This ring attracted much favorable comment from among the judges who did not have to do the tying in it. J. W. Ogden, of New York, said, after the class was dismissed, that there were other horses than those which were recognized they wanted to honor, but couldn't.

Crowd Fails To Pick Winner.

Three fine chestnut saddlers despoiled to the bugle call of [illegible] the First Kentucky Regiment, in the class for [illegible] animals. The contest, in the minds of the judges and in the popular estimation, was seen at first to lie between Montgomery Ward, a son of Montgomery Chief, and the Ball Bros.' entry, Golden Glow, a mare entered by A. S. Burr, of Bement, Ill. The audience fancied Golden Glow, which attracted by her freedom of motion and graceful quality, but Scott Ish[illegible] of Hardin Green, who judged the class, being closer and being judge, found that the first should go to the stallion.

Among the seven entries in the three-gaited class C. T. Pemberton, of Elizabethtown, picked Mr. Jones' Poetry of Motion, but, although he later said that the class was not a hard one to judge, ordered all the animals stripped for conformation. Mr. J. C. Cook, of Shelbyville, who rode the Wooldridge entry, Gayoso, only shoved his saddle back, and Mr. Pemberton himself lifted it to the strong, to see whether it was hiding anything. It evidently wasn't, for the horse drew the second.

Classes Pleases.

The local classes that pleased most were those of harness horses suitable for park use, in which several society people drove, and the ladies' obstacle driving class, in which Miss Louise Graham and Miss Anna Burge Muir piloted a spirited horse in a gig through two rows of whitewashed barrels most skilfully and with the most pleasing display of horsewomanship. The class in which the contest was for the Tavern Club cup, the failure of so many of the entries to be filled was a disappointment, while the class in which the delivery outfits contested for honors was called and dismissed before the full audience had arrived, although those who did see it manifested their approval heartily.

Mr. Wooldridge In Accident.

It was in class 43 that the hub about drawn by Flash, the Powhata Stock Farm entry, Mr. Powhatan Wooldridge driving, overturned at the south end of the ring. It barely missed striking Mr. Wooldridge under [illegible] he was dragged for some distance over the dusty but resilient tanbark before ring attendants stopped the horse. He got into the lighted runabout after the seat had been put in place and drove through out the holding of the class. His pluck won [illegible] the approval of the audience [illegible] he was little the [illegible] for his [illegible]ence, except [illegible] numerous turns about the [illegible]urface with a big smear of the [illegible]ark on one cheek and some rather sore muscles. This was the only accident to mar the whole of the evening's performance in any way, although at several other times it seemed that there was something similar going to happen, and people waited with bated breath until the danger was over.

Salvator Still a King.

Salvator, the American race horse of the century, appeared in a new role last night. He quit the turf a king, in the stud amid the alfalfa of California and in the bluegrass of Kentucky, he has since reigned a king, and last night he installed himself as king of the show ring. He has in days gone by enjoyed the plaudits of the rank and file of the turf; in the stud he has merited the praises of breeders and students of pedigrees and turf deeds, but last night it was society that bowed at his throne. The dress-suit gentlemen, the gorgeously-gowned women; in fact, the representation of all Kentucky were the types that bid him a royal welcome when he stepped on the tanbark for the first time in his long career last night.

What All Expected.

He was what they had expected, a grand old race horse in every light. Even though age stood all against him he looked every inch the turf king of America of all time. The grand form which made his marvelous turf deeds a possibility, though slightly bent with the weight of years, was still suggestive of the horse he was when he broke the heart of Tenny, as well as other great racing cracks of his day. He stood majestic, listening alike to the plaudits that over the arena, and had he been able to talk, his responsive speech would have been as eloquent as marks the orations of the famous speakers of the day.

Incident In Horse Shows.

The reception accorded the mighty horse will be an incident pointed back to for years to come in the life of the Louisville Horse Show Association. Not one in the vast assemblage failed to give him the glad hand. The society belle, just budding out, even slighted her escort when Salvator made his appearance. Her older sister turned her back on her company to get a better view of the famous horse, and wives and husbands and wives were interrupted in their conversation as both turned one from the other to get a glimpse of the most famous thoroughbred alive. There will be a revolution in society entertainments in Louisville the coming winter. There will be the Salvator tea, the Salvator euchre party, the Salvator ball and perhaps even the Salvator church festival, and if some enterprising modiste is wise there will be a Salvator walking costume on the streets before Thanksgiving turkeys begin to roam. The old horse surely made a hit. He was the star of a great show. The diamond, with the rubies and the pearls set around it. He was a fitting solitaire to the garden of flowers and the festoons of flags and buntings which so liberally decorated the Armory building last night.

President Roosevelt Pays Homage To Honored Dead.

THOUSANDS VISIT THE TOMB.

Canton, O., Sept. 30.—The McKinley mausoleum, the tribute and gift of a nation to the memory of the martyred President, William McKinley, was dedicated this afternoon in the presence of hundreds of distinguished men from all parts of the United States, the representatives of foreign countries and a crowd of approximately 50,000 gathered from all parts of the United States.

A feature of the dedication was the presence of the President of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt; Vice President Fairbanks, members of the President's Cabinet, United States Senators and Governors of several States.

Addresses were delivered by President Roosevelt, Justice William R. Day, McKinley's Secretary of State, and Gov. Andrew L. Harris, of Ohio.

The presiding officer of the day was Gov. Harris, who was introduced by Justice Day. His introduction was followed by an invocation by the Rev. Dr. Frank M. Bristol, pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church of Washington, D. C.

Justice Day's Address.

Justice Day was greeted in silent respect when he arose to tell the story and history of the building of the magnificent mausoleum, which arose majestically in the background. After the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the assemblage, Justice Day spoke in part as follows:

Perhaps no public man in our history has more attracted the attention of the people by the simplicity and beauty of his home life than did William McKinley. The devoted affection for the invalid wife, repaid by her with a love which never altered, made of the Canton home a picture which all the world salutes as the perfection of domestic peace and conjugal affection and which is forever consecrated in the memory of all who were permitted to behold it.

It is fitting that beside the man whose first thought and purpose were ever for her the beloved wife should be laid to rest. In the wall of the mausoleum niches have been provided for the two infant children early called from earth.

Thousands of loving hands have joined to bring the little family together in this beautiful temple.

In dedicating this monument, from this day forth, to the high purposes for which it is intended, the trustees of the Memorial Association cannot refrain from expressing the hope that it may serve to commemorate the life and deeds of the illustrious dead; may teach coming generations the lesson of a noble, pure and generous life, and impress upon the youth who shall look upon it in all the coming years that true success is only to be built upon an exalted character, and that the highest public honors and universal popular esteem are not inconsistent with a life devoted to the faithful and cheerful discharge of the simple duties of each day which make up the life of a good man and a patriotic citizen.

Artists Introduced.

During his speech, Justice Day, when mentioning the names of H. Van Buren McGonigle, the architect of the monument, and of Charles Henry Niehaus, the sculptor, asked the artists to arise, which they did, and they were greeted with applause.

At the close of Justice Day's speech, Gov. Harris asked the audience to rise while Miss Helen McKinley, only sister of the late President, drew aside the flag, disclosing the bronze figure of McKinley, in the attitude of delivering his last speech on the day of his assassination at Buffalo, September 6, 1901.

The flag was slowly and impressively removed. This was followed by the reading of the poem entitled "William McKinley" by James Whitcomb Riley.

President Roosevelt's Speech.

Gov. Harris then introduced the President of the United States, who delivered a short oration on "Appreciation of William McKinley." The President spoke as follows:

We have gathered together to-day to pay our meed of respect and affection to the memory of William McKinley, who as President won a place in the hearts of the American people such as but three or four of all the Presidents of this country have ever won. His was of singular uprightness and purity of character, alike in public and in private life; a citizen who loved peace, he did his duty faithfully and well for four years of war when the honor of the nation called him to arms. As Congressman, as Governor of his State, and finally as President, he rose to the foremost place among our statesmen, reaching a position which would satisfy the keenest ambition; but he never lost that simple and thoughtful kindness toward every human being, great or small, lofty or lowly, with whom he was brought in contact, which so endeared him to our people.

He had to grapple with more serious and complex problems than any President since Lincoln, and yet, while meeting every demand of statesmanship, he continued to live a beautiful and touching family life, a life very healthy for this nation to see in its foremost citizen; and now the woman who walks in the shadow ever after his death, the wife to whom his loss was a calamity more crushing than it could be to any other human being, lies beside him here in the same sepulcher.

There is a singular appropriateness in the inscription on his monument. Mr. Cortelyou, whose relations with him were of such close intimacy, gives me the following about it: On the President's trip to the Pacific slope, in the spring of 1901, President Wheeler, of the University of California, conferred the degree of LL. D. upon him, in words so well-chosen that they struck the fastidious taste of John Hay, then Secretary of State, who wrote and asked for a copy of them from President Wheeler.

With Strange Prescience.

On the receipt of this copy he sent the following letter to President McKinley, a letter which now seems filled with a strange and unconscious prescience:

"Dear Mr. President: President Wheeler sent me the inclosed at my request. You will have the words in more permanent shape. They seem to me remarkably well-chosen, and stately and dignified enough to serve—long hence, please God—as your epitaph. Yours faithfully,

"JOHN HAY.

"'University of California, Office of the President: By authority vested in me by the regents of the University of California, I confer the degree of Doctor of Laws upon William McKinley, President of the United States, a statesman singularly gifted to unite the discordant forces of the Government and mold the diverse purposes of men toward progressive and salutary action, a magistrate whose poise of judgment has been tested and vindicated in a succession of national emergencies; good citizen, brave soldier, wise executive, helper and leader of men, exemplar to his people of the virtues that build and conserve the State, society and the home.

"'Berkeley, May 15, 1901.'"

It would be hard to imagine an epitaph which a good citizen would be more anxious to deserve or one which would more happily describe the qualities of that great and good citizen whose life we here commemorate.

Arose to All Emergencies.

He possessed to a very extraordinary degree the gift of uniting discordant

TEARS STREAMED FROM GODDARD'S EYES

AS HE SAW BROTHER HE HAD SLAIN INTERRED.

ARRESTED FOR CRIME AS HE LEFT THE GRAVE.

DECLARE IT WAS AN ACCIDENT

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—As Charles Goddard, with tears streaming from his eyes, turned this afternoon from the new-made mound of earth, beneath which the brother he had killed yesterday had just been laid, Detectives Johnston and Veal laid their hands upon his shoulder and arrested him on the charge of murdering the brother beside whose grave he stood. Goddard, who had expected the arrest, quietly accompanied the officers to the jail, where he was locked up without bail to await examining trial, which will probably be held to-morrow.

The arrest was by pre-arrangement between the detectives and members of Goddard's family, the officers being notified this morning that Goddard was hiding near his father's home, where his dead brother's body lay, but was anxious to attend the funeral and interment, after which he would immediately give himself up. The officers consented to this plan, and, dressed in citizens' clothes, they went to the funeral, where they kept an eye on their man and arrested him as soon as the ceremonies were over.

Goddard showed the keenest sorrow over the death of his brother, which he declares was purely accidental, and gave practically the same story which was told by other eye-witnesses of the tragedy yesterday. He said that he and Henry Hunter were fighting, while his brother, James, and other persons were standing near. He was beating Hunter over the head with his pistol, when the weapon was accidentally discharged, the bullet passing through his brother's heart. The funeral was held this afternoon, and the interment took place in the Lexington cemetery.

GOV. COMER SELLS BIG PLANTATION

PROBABLY BOUGHT BY BOOKER WASHINGTON FOR NEGRO COLONIES.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 30.—A special from Birmingham, Ala., says:

Gov. B. B. Comer has sold his plantation in Barbour and Bullock counties, consisting of 18,000 acres, to Internal Revenue Collector Thompson, of the Alabama district, for $162,000, who, it is understood, is acting for Booker T. Washington. It is said to be Washington's intention to establish colonies of negroes on the land, nearly all of which is under a high state of cultivation, the improvements alone being valued at $70,000.

CAME TO BLOWS AND SHE FIRED THE GUN.

Mrs. Smith Turned Loose At Two Men Who Invaded Her Home.

Mt. Vernon, Ky., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Lee Wiggins was killed near Brodhead last night by Mrs. Cleli Smith. It is claimed that Wiggins, in company with Josiah Wiggins, a cousin, stopped in at Smith's house intoxicated and came to blows. Smith parried them and was knocked senseless with a pistol.

Mrs. Smith fired a shot gun and almost instantly killed Wiggins. Smith and his wife were arrested. Before reaching Smith's house, it is said that one of the two men had fired three shots into the home of George Hopper and Hopper fired his shot gun at them. Shortly afterward they carried Wiggins' body along the road by Hopper's house. Hopper came to town this morning and surrendered under the impression that he had done the killing and remains in jail awaiting investigation.

DENIES CHECKS WERE HELD UP

Hager Replies To Charges In Semonin Case.

Couldn't Regulate Dates Written By County Clerk.

Facts Brought Out In Mr. Hines' Examination.

HENDRICK HITS THE TRUST.

Cynthiana, Ky., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Emphatic denial of the charge that he had held up checks sent in by W. J. Semonin, Clerk of the Jefferson County Court, was made here this afternoon by Judge S. W. Hager, the Democratic candidate for Governor. He answered allegations made by Republican newspapers and Republican speakers.

On the question of the Semonin checks he said:

"The statement of partisan Republican newspapers in the city of Louisville that I have held up checks sent to the Auditor's office by W. J. Semonin, late Clerk of Jefferson County Court, in settlement of his accounts, or that I have in any way granted him favors or handled his accounts in any other manner than that in which the accounts of all other clerks of the State, Democratic or Republican, were handled or that I had any information of any delinquency or shortage of Mr. Semonin until July 1, 1907, are absolutely false.

Promptly Audited.

Mr. Semonin's reports and remittances when received in the Auditor's office have been promptly audited in the regular course of business of said office, and the checks were at once turned into the Treasury.

"In practically every instance his reports have been audited within three days after receipt, and in only two cases can I find where there has been any further delay, one of eight and the other of twelve days. On these occasions the delay was caused by the absence of the clerk in charge of County Clerks' reports and the necessity of correspondence with the said County Clerk's office in regard to certain items of said reports before same could be properly audited.

"In every instance the checks with said reports have been immediately upon completion of audit turned into the Treasury. These reports contain items of license tax collections amounting to an average of more than $15,000 per month. Under section 4195, Kentucky Statutes, it is required that the clerk shall at once in each month pay his collections into the State Treasury, and, under the practice of the Auditor's office all county clerks are required to forward these reports and remittances on same within the month succeeding the month in which the collections were made.

"That Mr. Semonin took the full time allowed under section 4195 was not at my instance, nor was my attention ever especially called to his reports, as would have been done had he failed to make same, or had there been any irregularities in same which could not be straightened out by the clerk auditing same.

Absolutely Untrue.

"The dates given in the newspapers above mentioned as recorded on Hager's books are the dates on which the audits of said reports, received only a few days previous, were completed and checks turned into the Treasury and are correct, except as to the report for March, 1907, of which it is stated 'no payment whatever.' This is absolutely untrue. The report for said month, March, 1907, was received the last of April and audit completed and amount due paid into the Treasury May 2, 1907. Said report showed collections of $31,869.59 and contained check for $16,369.59 in full settlement of balance due on same. As to what dates Mr. Semonin, for conveyance of his own bookkeeping, placed upon his checks, the Auditor's office could in no way regulate.

"In reply to implied criticism of my office in these same papers in July, charging that Mr. Semonin owed the State $48,000 and that such shortage could not have existed without my knowledge, I stated to the public in a card at that time that the records of my office showed that Mr. Semonin owed the State $15,773.59 on an unpaid check for June collections, and that so far as I or my office had any information, there was nothing further wrong in his accounts.

Mr. Hines' Report.

"The report of the examination of the office by State Inspector and Examiner disclosed that Mr. Semonin retired from office owed $8,688.43, and that there were in the Auditor's office showing that any further the $15,773.59 were owing. Per item found due was found examination of said Clerk's $93.04 was found due on items, of which were not due until of August, and $11,769.59 on ports on which were not due tember.

Mr. Semonin continued in office, balance found due, $4,253.33, $299.50 was upon items which had been omitted from reports, and $3,959.89 as the amount in excess of the total sum drawn by Mr. Semonin as salaries for deputy clerks and the amount actually paid to deputies according to his books. Of these items, the Auditor's office could have no information for every dollar of this $3,959.89 that was allowed to be drawn as salaries for deputies there was filed and are now on file in the Auditor's office orders of the Judges of the Courts of Jefferson county allowing same, and that the full amount of same was not paid out by Mr. Semonin could only be determined or discovered by an examination of his books.

"The State's interests have at all times been carefully guarded and fully protected, and the full amount due from Mr. Semonin has been paid into the Treasury."

Speeches Well Received.

Judge Hager and John K. Hendrick, Democratic candidate for Attorney General, spoke here this afternoon to a courthouse comfortably filled, about 200 men and women being present. The crowd warmed up to Judge Hager and yelled when Mr. Hendrick denounced the Tobacco Trust. Both speeches were well received and given close attention.

Mr. Hendrick defended the Dark Tobacco Growers' Association against charges of lawlessness and detailed some of the methods used by the American Tobacco Company in creating its

YOUNG HARGIS IS ROVING AGAIN

EXPERIENCED TRAVELER AND HAS BEEN AROUND BEFORE.

MOTHER SEARCHING FOR HIM IN CINCINNATI.

WENT WHEREVER HE WANTED.

Jackson, Ky., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Beech Hargis, handsome, independent and of a roving disposition, is again missing. Though barely twenty-one years of age, young Hargis is an experienced traveler, having visited several foreign countries, counting among his experiences feudal fights in the mountains, service in the United States army, and the log and lumber business in Central America. The only son of Judge James Hargis, he has always been the spoiled pet of his mother, who has always furnished Beech with money when he wanted it.

As young Mr. Hargis has for the last four or five years gone wherever and whenever the notion struck him without saying anything to anyone of his intentions, nothing in particular was said or thought when he went to Lexington about a month ago and did not return. However, his continued absence so disturbed Mrs. Hargis that she left Saturday afternoon for Cincinnati, being informed that her son was at work in that city with some prominent contractor.

Judge Hargis has not heard from Mrs. Hargis since she left, and is unable to say whether she has found the young man.

Beech Hargis achieved some local notoriety here two years ago by standing off an attack of four men and holding a house against "Red" Tom Cockrill and three others until help came, although every window in the room was broken by bullets.

Mrs. James Hargis is a woman of indomitable will and is very resourceful. It is predicted that she will succeed in finding her boy, even as she persisted until she secured his release from the army three years ago, which he had joined in a spirit of adventure.

Mother In Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. James Hargis, who is still in this city at the home of Mr. Jackson, a former Kentuckian, has so far failed to find any trace of her son, Beech Hargis, who has disappeared. The police are looking for the young man, but have failed to locate him. Some of his friends fear that he may have gone back to Breathitt county and met with foul play.

MRS. KAVANAUGH GRANTED A DIVORCE

AS JULIA CHURCHILL SHE WAS COUNTED ONE OF KENTUCKY'S MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMEN.

New York, Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Supreme Court Justice Jaycox at Patchogue to-day handed down a decision in favor of Mrs. Julia Churchill Kavanaugh, known as one of Kentucky's most beautiful women, in her suit for absolute divorce against George W. Kavanaugh, a wealthy manufacturer, and granting her $80 weekly alimony and $1,500 counsel fee. Kavanaugh recently sought forgiveness of his wife and signed an agreement promising to pay her $150,000 in lieu of alimony. He refused afterward to make even a first payment on this sum, according to Mrs. Kavanaugh's complaint.

She is a daughter of James Newton Rickman, who was a captain in the Confederate army. In 1896, when she was seventeen years old, she made her social debut at Louisville. She was noted for her beauty. The following year she met and married George W. Kavanaugh, a wealthy manufacturer of Waterford, N. Y.

As a result of six months' work by a detective she employed, Mrs. Kavanaugh decided to seek legal redress, rejecting her husband's plea for forgiveness. Kavanaugh entered counter charges against his wife.

TO REGISTER ALL DEMOCRATS

Instructions Given To Get Them Out Early.

Commissioners Change Ninety-one Officers.

Some Against Protest of Democratic Member.

Mayor Bingham's Orders To Chiefs Haager and Tyson.

FAVORITISM IS CHARGED.

The eve of the first day for registering voters in Louisville found both the Democrats and Republicans active in arranging to get out their full strength. The election commissioners made ninety-one changes in election officers yesterday, most of them by unanimous action, it is said. Some were made against the protest of the Democratic member of the board, who felt that the charges were not warranted.

Mayor Bingham also took a hand by calling before him Chief Hager and the captains of police and Chief Tyson and the captains of the Fire Department and told them he would hold them responsible for any undue interest in the registration on the part of their men.

At the Republican headquarters it was said that they had not brought any repeaters to Louisville and any charge of that sort, they said, was ridiculous. The same was said at the Democratic headquarters.

Distribute Books and Certificates.

Sheriff Bullitt had his deputies at work yesterday distributing to each voting place placards bearing the inscription, "Official polls," and also indicating the ward and precinct number of each. This is to prevent any confusion which may result from removals of polls from former locations.

Phil D. Thompson, County Clerk, was engaged throughout yesterday in the distribution of registration books and certificate blanks.

To Get Out the Voters.

The Tyler headquarters were crowded all yesterday, and especially during the afternoon, at the time that the Democratic City and County Campaign Committee was in session. Reports from the committeemen from each ward were to the effect that workers would be in every precinct in the city at 6 o'clock this morning when the polls for registration opened and would remain at their posts until the polls close at 9 o'clock to-night. The same workers will be on hand to-morrow in the interest of getting all the Democrats to register.

To Get Them Out Early.

Most of the workers in the 184 precincts were given instructions yesterday and last night as to the mode of procedure. The main object is to get all Democrats to register as early as possible. The members of the Democratic Campaign Committee said that they knew of no repeaters being brought to the city and that they would not be a party to any scheme to persuade persons to register who were not entitled to a vote in the general election next month. Chairman Forcht said that all the Democratic leaders wanted was for every Democrat entitled to a vote to register, and this they intended to see was done.

City Employes Helping Republicans.

From several sources members of the Democratic Committee said yesterday it had come to their ears that, despite the fact that Mayor Bingham had given orders that no one in the employ of the city should take part in a political campaign, several employes of the city were organizing Grinstead clubs. Members of the committee say if city employes are discharged for talking politics with Democrats, other city employes who work for Republican nominees should also be discharged.

If any more such reports come to the Democratic Committee, members say an open letter will be addressed to the Mayor, calling his attention to the fact, and asking that he treat all employes of the city alike. The matter was discussed at length by the members of the committee yesterday afternoon, but it was the opinion of all that no action would be taken until something further had been done in the matter.

Chairman Forcht Encouraged.

After the committee adjourned Chairman Fred Forcht said that he thought everything was in splendid shape so far and nothing but encouragement could be seen on all sides. He said the situation was steadily improving and that men who some time ago had declared themselves in favor of Grinstead were now declaring daily for the Democratic ticket. He said the Campaign Committee had almost a faultless organization and he never saw Democratic workers more in earnest in a campaign. Chairman Forcht will be at headquarters pretty much all of to-day in order to assist the workers in any way possible. All workers are instructed to communicate with headquarters if any tangle should arise that they cannot adjust.

HOLDS OFFICERS RESPONSIBLE.

Mayor Bingham Calls Police and Firemen On Carpet.

"I shall not only discharge from the service every member of the police and fire departments who take an undue interest in the registration which begins today and the election to be held in November, but I shall hold the officers over these men responsible for the acts of their men. If any of the officers in these two departments allow any of their men to get away from them, I shall hold such officer or officers responsible, and they will have me to deal with."

This was the statement made yesterday afternoon by Mayor Bingham, after he had dismissed from his office in the City Hall Maj. Filmore Tyson, Chief of the fire department, and all the assistant chiefs in this department, and Col. J. H. Haager, Chief of the police department, and all the Captains of police.

"I made clear to these gentlemen just what I have told you," said Mayor Bingham late yesterday afternoon. "I cited them to the order issued by the Board of Public Safety, warning the police and firemen against participating unduly in the registration and election, and assured them that I would hold them responsible for the actions of the men under them. I made it clear that the only duty incumbent upon police and firemen on registration days and on election day is to protect life and property and maintain order."

Continuing, Mayor Bingham said that when he accepted the appointment of Mayor at the hands of the Governor he went into the office with the determination to see that the next election was "conducted on the square."

Looks For No Interference.

"I am determined that the police and firemen shall attend strictly to their duties and take no part whatever, other than to vote, if they so desire, in politics. I believe that they will obey instructions as they have been set forth, and I don't look for any interference whatever on the part of the police and firemen during the registration, which begins to-morrow."

Mayor Bingham and the members of the Board of Public Safety will remain in their offices at the City Hall all to-day and to-morrow for the purpose of receiving complaints against any policeman or fireman who so far forgets himself as to manifest undue interest in what is going on politically. The Board of Public Safety issued a notice yesterday morning, directing all police officers and men under them during the registration to-day and to-morrow to arrest immediately all "repeaters, 'phonies and persons registering or attempting to register illegally, and to take or have taken warrants against all such persons."

TYLER CONFIDENT.

Says He Is Going To Win Race For Mayor.

The Campaign Committee will meet again at 3:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon to discuss the results of the registration and consummate further plans for the campaign. It is expected that the Speakers' Committee will have been organized so that plans for pushing the campaign may be outlined. As soon as this committee is organized, arrangements for meetings will be made at once and speakers assigned. Many Democratic leaders have tendered their services.

Much interest is being manifested in the meeting to be held at Seventeenth street and Portland avenue to-morrow night at which Owen Tyler and several other candidates will make addresses. One meeting will be held in the hall and another meeting will be held out of doors. Several Democrats from that section of the city were at headquarters yesterday and said that the meeting would be largely attended. Some well-known attorney may be asked to address the meetings along with the candidates.

Mr. Tyler Confident.

Owen Tyler attended the meeting of the Campaign Committee yesterday afternoon and expressed the fullest confidence in his election. "I have nothing to say to-day," said Mr. Tyler, "but that I am going to win." Mr. Tyler talked personally with every committeeman present and his presence seemed to inspire confidence in the workers.

Elijah Bayse, the Confederate veteran, who is a member of the committee, is the most enthusiastic of all of Mr. Tyler's supporters.

"What are you doing here?" was the query of a reporter as he entered the room after the committee had adjourned. With a bound, Mr. Bayse exclaimed:

"We are here to show some of these fellows on the other side that we are in the race. Furthermore, the morning after the election they will realize it to their greatest sorrow."

The Campaign Committee yesterday agreed on a list to be substituted to the Democratic City and County Committee to-day at its meeting from which selections for nominees for members of the General Council and school board may be made. Four or fivepersons are named from each ward from which to select nominees for councilmen and aldermen and the same number from each of the school trustee districts. The Democratic Committee at its meeting to-day will probably name the time when nominations for councilmen and aldermen and school trustees will be made. The committee intends to name a splendid set of candidates, who are representative men and will command the respect of the business and professional interests of the city. It is also the intention of the committee as near as possible to represent the varied business and professional interests in the nimonations for members of the General Council and School Board.

"SITUATION ALL RIGHT."

Capt. W. J. Stone Starts On a Week's Campaigning Trip.

Capt. W. J. Stone arrived in the city yesterday afternoon and was at Democratic headquarters for a short time last night. Capt. Stone is billed to speak this week in the central part of the State, touching in several congressional districts. He was to have spoken at Lagrange yesterday, but the date had to be canceled. Capt. Stone will begin his week's campaign at Newcastle to-day. He is in fine trim, and is one of the old-time campaigners. When asked what he thought of the situation, Capt. Stone said:

"It is all right. The Democratic State ticket is going to win."

Capt. Stone said he preferred to do his talking on the stump now rather than in the newspapers. He still retains his powerful physique and commanding appearance. He is a forceful speaker.

Owing to the fact that yesterday was Monday but few politicians called at headquarters. The office force, though, was busy all day. James Stone closed up the headquarters proper early last night and took a rest. Chairman Henry B. Hines, of the Campaign Committee, went to Bowling Green yesterday afternoon in order to register to-day. He will return to the city this afternoon.

Dr. Milton Board, acting chairman of the Speakers' Bureau, is busily engaged in arranging dates and speakers for the remainder of the campaign. Of course, much interest is centered in the Bryan tour of the western part of the State, that is to be made next Monday and Tuesday, but the final arrangements will not be made until later in the week. The State will be flooded with speakers during the last two weeks of the month.

Jerusalem Tyler Club.

The Jerusalem Tyler Club, with 125 members, has been organized at Spring and Payne streets, in the First ward. The club will hold meetings every Tuesday night during the campaign and all Democrats are requested to attend. Speakers have been invited to address the club at the various meetings, so that there will be no lack of interest. The officers of the club are: President, Mike A. Busch; vice president, Martin Dries; chairman, John Scanlon; secretary, Charles Burkle; treasurer, Martin Weible; sergeant-at-arms, George Fast.

MANY CHANGES MADE.

Election Commissioners Name Ninety-one New Registration Officers.

Since the issuance of the list of registration and election officers, the Board of Election Commissioners has made changes in ninety-one of the original number. All but about six or seven of these changes were made by unanimous consent of the board. These six or seven were made on motion of Howard B. Lee, the Republican commissioner, who based his objection in most instances on the alleged connection of the appointees in question with precincts in the 1905 election, where irregularities are said to have occurred, and against the protest of the Democratic member. When brought to a vote the objections of Mr. Lee were sustained by Sheriff Bullitt.

The great majority of the changes, it is said, were made as the result of sickness or for business reasons urged by the appointees. Some of them were city employes, who asked to be relieved of the duty on the ground that Mayor Bingham has taken the position that city officers should not participate in politics.

POSTUM

Coffee is a hidden but powerful enemy to one's progress in life. Its subtle, narcotic poison, weakens heart, interferes with digestion and has a definite and destructive effect on the nervous system. People who are content to load themselves with impediments to progress, who refuse to supply body with food and drink of the kind needed to make up for the daily disintegration of nerve and brain tissue, must stand aside in the race for pre-eminence.

The ones who are properly fed, will surely win the laurels.

Postum furnishes the gluten and phosphates of grain needed by Nature to nourish brain and nerves with food. When made right, that is, boiled 15 minutes after boiling begins, it has a delicious taste similar to the mild, high-grade Javas, but with none of the bad effects of coffee.

There are those who are entirely careless as to what goes into the stomach, but the one who would make all his movements tend toward health and possible greatness can know by a personal test.

St. Louis, Sept. 30.—[Special.]—St. Louis annual carnival week began with the illumination of the streets to-night. On Tuesday the Veiled Prophet will pay his annual visit to the city, giving the annual parade and ball in the evening. The ball will take place on the floor of the Merchants' Exchange. It will be notable this year on account of the large number of visiting Governors who will attend, no less than twenty-two Chief Executives of as many States having accepted the invitations sent them.

On Wednesday, which will be the big day of the week this year, President Roosevelt will visit the city, arriving by boat in the morning, on his way to attend the Memphis Waterways Convention. There will be several parades and a great demonstration on the river. President Roosevelt will speak at the Jai Alai building at 11 o'clock, and after this there will be luncheon at the Jefferson Hotel. The departure of the presidential party from the city will take place at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

City In Holiday Attire.

Already the city is beginning to wear a holiday appearance, as many of the business houses and residences have already donned their decorations in honor of President Roosevelt, the Veiled Prophet and the twenty-two Governors and other distinguished visitors.

A special fund of $14,000 has been raised to decorate houses where the owners cannot or will not undertake the work.

The first of the distinguished visitors will arrive in St. Louis Tuesday, and the twenty-two Governors are expected to be here in time to witness the Veiled Prophet's parade and take part in the ball. One party of these Governors will assemble at Keokuk, and after the President departs by boat they will come to St. Louis on a special train, arriving here about 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. They will be accompanied by James E. Smith and O. L. Whitelaw.

Governors Who Are Comnig.

This party will consist of Govs. Napoleon B. Broward, of Florida; Charles S. Deneen, of Illinois; Albert B. Cummins, of Iowa; Edward W. Hoch, of Kansas; Newton C. Blanchard, of Louisiana; John A. Johnson, of Minnesota; George L. Sheldon, of Nebraska; John Burke, of North Dakota; Frank Frantz, of Oklahoma; George E. Chamberlain, of Oregon; Coe I. Crawford, of South Dakota; J. O. Davidson, of Wisconsin; Bryant B. Brooks, of Wyoming.

Mayor Wells, Charles H. Huttig, D. C. Nugent and G. W. Simmons have been appointed a committee to meet this special train.

Other State executives, who will come to St. Louis from other points, will each be met at the Union Station by a certain member of the Business Men's League especially designated for that duty. These Governors and the men who will meet each one of them are as follows: Tom Randolph, Gov. Campbell, of Texas; J. F. Coyle, Gov. Buchtel, of Colorado; L. T. June, Gov. Patterson, of Tennessee; John C. Roberts, Gov. Folk, of Missouri; W. H. Peters, Gov. Pindall, of Arkansas; W. H. Thomson, Gov. Comer, of Alabama; C. L. Hillcary, Gov. Noel, of Mississippi; Amedee B. Cole, Gov. Curry, of New Mexico; J. E. Pilcher, Gov. Warner, of Michigan.

All the Governors, upon their arrival in the city, will be taken directly to the Planters' Hotel, where apartments have been reserved for them. A supper will be given for them Tuesday evening in parlor B, at which James [illegible]mith will be the host, assisted by [illegible]rs of the Business Men's League, [illegible]r Wells and D. R. Francis. After [illegible]r the Governors will review the [illegible] Prophet's parade from the balcony of the hotel, which has been reserved for their use. A committee of twenty-four citizens has been named by the Veiled Prophet to meet the Governors on the balcony and escort them to the ball after the parade has passed.

Wednesday morning the carriages which are to convey the president, the members of the Inland Waterway Commission and the visiting Governors will assemble at the Planters' Hotel and will start from there to the river front at about 9:15 a. m. There the president and members of the Inland Waterway Commission will debark from the steamers Mississippi and Mackenzie and take their places in the carriages, starting at once for the Jai Alai building.

The carriages will move over the following route: West on Olive street from the river to Fourteenth street, north on Fourteenth street to Locust street, west on Locust street to Ewing avenue, south on Ewing avenue to Pine street, west on Pine street to Grand avenue, north on Grand avenue to Lindell boulevard, west on Lindell boulevard to the entrance of Forest Park, through Forest Park to De Baliviere avenue, north on De Ballere avenue to the building.

Programme At Jai Alai.

A committee consisting of Frank Wyman, F. G. Niedringhaus, T. S. McPheeters and Nicholas M. Bell will meet the President and distinguished guests at the entrance to the Jai Alai building, and escort them to the platform. Mayor Wells will preside at the meeting. He will introduce Gov. Folk, who in turn will introduce President Roosevelt. It is expected that the President will occupy from forty-five minutes to an hour with his speech.

According to the programme, the presidential party on the Mississippi and the Mackenzie are expected to reach St. Louis at about 9:45 a. m. The start from Keokuk will be made at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday, and, allowing a run of eleven miles an hour, this would bring the party in at 6 o'clock. Thus ample time is allowed for unexpected delays, and the speed of the fleet will be regulated so as to bring it in on time. The time set for the meeting at the Jai Alai building to be called to order is 11 o'clock, thus giving an hour and fifteen minutes for the drive from the river.

After the speaking the party will return to their carriages and be driven to the Hotel Jefferson, where a luncheon will be given by the Business Men's League.

After the luncheon the party will drive east on Washington avenue to Broadway, south on Broadway to Olive and east on Olive to the river, where those who are going to Memphis by river will embark.

The President and his immediate party will return on board the Mississippi. The members of the Inland Waterways Commission will board the Mackenzie and all the visiting Governors, in charge of the officials of the league, will board the Alton. These boats will accompany the Mississippi to Cairo and Memphis.

As the President's boat passes Jefferson Barracks a salute will be fired, and the troops will be assembled on the bank to present arms.

It is expected that the party will reach Cairo about 9 a. m. Thursday. The President will deliver a speech there and the fleet will leave at 11 a. m. Memphis will be reached about 1 p. m. Friday.

COL. VANCE TO CONVENTION.

Will Address Big Waterways Meeting In Memphis.

Col. John L. Vance, of Columbus, O., president of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association, arrived in Louisville last night en route to Memphis, Tenn., to attend the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterway Convention, which will be in session Friday and Saturday. Col. Vance is accompanied by his son, F. H. Vance, who is a business man of Columbus. They are at The Seelbach and will remain there until noon to-day, when they will take the Illinois Central railroad for Cairo, Ill., where they will be the guests of the Mayor of Cairo to-morrow night at a reception tendered the Illinois Editorial Association.

Col. Vance has been president of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association ever since its organization in 1895. The fact that, when a member of Congress from the Gallipolis district, he took a great interest in river improvement, resulted in his being made president of the Ohio Valley Improvement Association. Col. Vance has done much toward the improvement of the Ohio river.

"The object of the Deep Waterway Convention," said Col. Vance, "is to further the project of a fourteen-foot stage of water from Chicago to the gulf. I am greatly interested in any scheme that will give us navigation the year round in the rivers of the Middle West, but especially in the Ohio river, which carries the bulk of the inland commerce of the United States. The six States bordering on the Ohio river produce one-third of the wealth of the United States. That alone makes the Ohio river the most important factor in the commerce of the middle States."

Col. Vance will address the convention at Memphis either Friday or Saturday. His address will no doubt be listened to with great interest by the delegates, owing to the fact that he is authority on the river improvement in the United States. Col. Vance may stop over in Louisville on his return from Memphis, as he has many friends in Louisville who have worked hand in hand with him on the improvement idea of the Ohio river.

HOERTER RESIGNS

LEAVES OFFICE OF ASSISTANT LIVE STOCK INSPECTOR.

Dr. Bradley's Successor To Be Elected By Council To-night.

Fred Hoerter, Assistant Live Stock and Meat Inspector, has tendered his resignation to Mayor Robert Bingham, and it will be presented to the General Council at the meeting to be held to-night. The resignation of Mr. Hoerter was voluntary on his part. He was appointed by Dr. Bradley, following the latter's election by the General Council.

Soon after both boards of the General Council are called to order to-night a resolution will be introduced calling for a joint meeting of the two boards at 8 o'clock, at which time the election of a successor to Dr. Bradley will be gone into. Joe Byrne is the only man who has been mentioned as yet in connection with the appointment, and his chances of landing the position are said to be good.

From information gathered yesterday there is hardly a doubt but what James R. Brown, chairman of the Board of Public Works, will be named as a member of the City Sinking Fund Commission to succeed L. O. Cox. The successor to Mr. Cox is to be named to-night by both boards of the General Council in joint session.

Owing to the absence from the city of George Allen, clerk of the lower board, his father, George Allen, Sr., will look after his duties in the Board of Council to-night.

DISAGREED

Jury In Pearce Will Case Hopelessly Divided.

SECOND TRIAL AND SECOND DISAGREEMENT.

EIGHT TO FOUR TO SUSTAIN DOCUMENT.

HEIRS CLAIMED UNFAIRNESS.

Maysville, Ky., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—The jury in the Pearce will case, on trial in the Mason Circuit Court here, could not agree upon a verdict, and was discharged this afternoon by Judge Harbeson. This is the second trial of this now celebrated case and the second disagreement of a jury. There were four for breaking the will and eight to sustain it.

L. Ed Pearce, of Lexington, son of the late Charles B. Pearce, is the one who is trying to break the will, claiming unfairness in the distribution of the estate.

In the will Mr. Pearce left his entire estate to Mrs. John Dowd, of Louisville. Messrs. Charles D. Pearce, of this city, and Christian L. Pearce, of Washington, D. C., claim in the will that he had given L. Ed Pearce more than the share of each of the beneficiaries during his lifetime.

Will Be Carried Out.

Bowling Green, Ky. Sept. 20.—[Special.]—The will of the late T. J. Sweeney was probated here to-day, after having laid over a week to see whether there would be a contest. No contest was filed, and the provisions of the will are to be carried out. Judge B. W. Bradburn is named as administrator, and for this service and other legal services rendered the testator during his life he is to receive $10,000. Mr. Sweeney had never married, and the estate, which is estimated in value about $80,000, is divided among his nearest relations.

Sued Amusement Company.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—E. H. Pell, Sam Minor and R. Calissi, of Paducah, to-day filed suits here against the Robinson Amusement Company for alleged breach of contract. The amusement company began a week's engagement here to-day under the auspices of the Eagle Lodge, and plaintiffs claim they had contracted to show in Paducah this week.

Injured In Runaway.

Lancaster, Ky., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Miss Amanda Joseph, daughter of Phillip Joseph, of Lower Garrard, was badly injured, suffering a broken hip bone and several fractured ribs in a runaway on the Lexington turnpike. Miss Joseph remained unconscious for several hours, and it is feared she has sustained permanent injuries.

On Trial For Murder.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—George Putman, who shot and killed Prof. J. C. Wright in North Christian on November 24, 1906, was placed on trial to-day for willful murder. The entire day was consumed in securing a jury. This is the most important case to be heard at this term of court. Putman will claim self-defense.

CHANCES SEEM AGAINST WILEY AND RECTIFIERS

ARREST MAY BE MADE IN WASHINGTON TO-DAY.

MANUFACTURERS GENERALLY HAVE COMPLIED WITH LAW.

PUBLIC MUST BE PROTECTED.

Washington, Sept. 30.—[Special.]—With all chances seemingly against an agreement between the Attorney General and the rectifiers, an arrest may be made in Washington as early as to-morrow because of violations of the pure food acts regulating and governing the labeling of whisky.

"It looks as though things would begin to move so far as our department is concerned," said Dr. Wiley to-night. To-morrow is the day also when all regulations governing pure food and drugs go into effect. Practically all concerns have already branded their products as required by law, and there are but few instances where there has been any hesitancy, and that has been caused by doubt as to the construction of the law. These cases will doubtless all be adjusted by the department without any friction except that of whisky.

"As a general thing," said Dr. Wiley, "the manufacturers have complied with the law in a willing spirit. They know it is to their advantage to do so, and we have had very little antagonism. But the public must be protected, and it is the purpose of this bureau, with the aid of the Department of Justice and the courts, to see to it that the public is protected."

HANLY FAVORS TOTAL EXTINCTION OF SALOONS.

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Gov. J. Frank Hanly, of Indiana, to-day delivered an address before the Chicago Ministerial Association upon the liquor traffic.

He declared that the world still needs a militant church in order to fight the liquor power which recognizes, he said, no law on earth. He declared that crime had decreased in his State, where the local option law had been enforced and he favored the total extinction of the saloons.

STRIKE MAY SPREAD TO OTHER LOCALITIES.

Toledo, O., Sept. 30.—Striking railway clerks here now number 150, and the strikers expect 150 more men cut with forty-eight hours. Business is being handled with little interruption by roads. The striking clerks threaten to call out members of the union in Columbus, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and other cities reached by the roads affected.

The Weavers

Messrs. Harper & Brothers take pleasure in announcing the publication in book form of Gilbert Parker's great new novel, "THE WEAVERS."

THE BOOK

The appearance of this romance as a serial in Harper's Magazine seems to have so interested the reading public that they have compelled the printing before publication of more books than were ever similarly issued under the imprint of HARPER & BROTHERS.

THE REASON

The story is one of terrific force. In the realm of adventure strife has a purpose, love is noble and victory falls to those who fight the good fight. The lives of a man and woman cross and intermingle and the threads woven by fate finally achieve a result at once satisfying and complete.

THE KEYNOTE

The author's foreword sounds the note:

"Ye are all weavers, and Allah the Merciful, does he not watch beside the loom?"

REVIEW OF STATE ISSUES.

Gov. Beckham Did Not Discuss Bradley's Speech At Paducah.

Paducah, Ky., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Ideal weather for outdoor speaking favored Gov. Beckham and Congressman Ollie James to-night, and between 1,000 and 2,000 people collected to hear them at Fifth street and Kentucky avenue, where a stand had been erected at the side of the "Three Links" building. Gov. Beckham was expected to reply to the Princeton speech of former Gov. Bradley, but he stated that he had not had time to read the Bradley speech, and so he directed his attention to a general resume of the State issues, defending his own administration against the attacks of the Republican campaign orators, and calling upon the Democrats of the Gibraltar district to roll up the usual majority.

He spoke in behalf of the State, legislative and municipal tickets. Declaring that in Kentucky and in every Southern State the Democrats represent the best element of citizenship and are best able to govern the cities. He cited conditions which existed under the Bradley regime, and said the same tactics are being resorted to by the Republicans in this campaign.

He urged the Democrats of Western Kentucky to see that their party is retained in power and in the State and in the city of Louisville by rolling up a bigger majority than ever before. Congressman Ollie James followed Gov. Beckham in a speech full of the wit and point for which the First district Congressman is famous. He had the crowd cheering and roaring in turns.

The party arrived here from Mayfield at 4 o'clock. They were met at the Broadway crossing by a Reception Committee headed by a band, and were escorted to the Palmer House, where they had supper and held a levee prior to the speaking. Hon. Hal Corbett presided and introduced Gov. Beckham, while Eugene Graves, candidate for the Legislature, introduced Mr. James.

ADDRESSED LARGE CROWD.

Ex-Gov. Bradley Spoke From Veranda of Home of Mr. Woodson Lewis.

Greensburg, Ky., Sept. 30.—[Special.—Former Gov. Bradley arrived here last night and was met at the depot by a committee of the leading Republicans and escorted to the home of Woodson Lewis, where he was entertained, and to-day spoke to a large crowd from his front veranda, which was tastefully draped and decorated.

Early this morning the crowd began coming to town, and by 12 o'clock about 2,500 people had assembled to hear the speech. His audience was attentive and enthusiastic throughout his speech and he was frequently applauded, although it was said that the Governor did not reach his former record as a speaker.

Two brass bands were on the ground and the public school children turned out to hear the address. Mr. Bradley scored the Democrats on his usual lines.

BIG RALLY.

Lexington Democrats Hold Big Rally and Hear Some Speeches.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—The Lexington Democrats held a big ante-registration day rally to-night, and Jackson Hall, where the speaking took place, was packed till it cracked with enthusiastic Democrats. There was no room for chairs except on the stage, and the hall capacity, which is rated at 600, held to-night by actual count an audience of 998 men all standing and packed as closely as sardines in a box.

Congressman W. P. Kimball presided, and speeches were made by Mr. Kimball, John Skain, Democratic nominee for Mayor; Wallace Muir, Democratic nominee for City Attorney; G. Allison Holland and Dr. Thomas Bucky. The Republicans have recently started an aggressive campaign which has stirred up the Democrats.

SALOON MEN WIN.

Mt. Sterling Primaries Result In a Victory For Liquor People.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—The Democratic city primary was held here to-day and the saloon men were victorious in the Council races. The nominees are James McDonald. The nominees are W. A. Samuels and M. S. [illegible] ward; W. A. Samuels and M. S. [illegible]ley, Second ward; William Botts and J. Roger Gatewood in the Fourth ward. W. C. Hamilton defeated D. L. [illegible] ward; W. BAGGAGE BURNED IN CAMP, FAMILY COMES HOME TO FIND THAT HOUSE WAS RANSACKED

However, the Rev. W. H. Ramsay Found Conditions Not As Bad As He Had Expected.

Ransacked from basement to attic was the condition in which the Rev. W. H. Ramsey found his residence on his return from Lake Asquam, N. H., where he and his family have been spending the smumer since July 1. J. F. Gauvreau had rented the residence during July and August, but had moved out a few weeks ago. After vacating the house Mr. Gauvreau made occasional inspections of the dwelling. When he went to the house last Thursday morning he found things in a topsy-turvey condition. He notified the detectives and upon investigation it was discovered that the thieves had effected an entrance by forcing the bars on the window opening into the cellar apart. The window where the robbers entered is in the rear of the house and the opening where they entered was not over eighteen inches wide.

Dr. Ramsey said that from the rumors he had heard he would not have been surprised to have found even the wall paper gone from the walls and was very much relieved to find after investigation that the missing articles amounted to a few pieces of winter clothing. Although he has not thoroughly investigated the house, Dr. Ramsey says that he thought the damage would not amount to more than a hundred dollars.

"There must have been about three of them and boys," said Dr. Ramsey, "for only boys could have entered the residence through the bars. Apparently they were after jewelry and money for all the locks on the closet doors and trunks were broken open. I was very much relieved to find that only some winter clothing was missing. Luckily I had deposited all my silverware and valuables in the safety vault at one of the banks.

"It seems that bad luck has happened to us in the last few weeks, for while in camp at Lake Asquam our camp caught fire from a Japanese lantern and burned all of our baggage and we were left without any clothing except what we had on our backs. Hearing that my house had been robbed, I came home with my family Saturday and made an investigation as soon as possible." Since the report of the robbery was made it has been concluded by the police that it was probably committed by the same thieves, Landon Smith, George Ross and Fred Baker, who were arrested Thursday morning and confessed to Detective Ross to the robberies of the Breed and Wood residences, both of which are in the neighborhood of Dr. Ramsey's home.

S.S.S. CURES ECZEMA

The cause of Eczema is a too acid condition of the blood. The itching, burning eruptions are caused by the outpouring through the pores and glands of the skin, of the fiery poisons with which the circulation is loaded. This acrid matter coming in contact with the delicate tissues and fibres with which the skin is so abundantly supplied causes irritation and inflammation and often excessive discomfort and annoyance. While external applications, such as salves, washes, lotions, etc., are soothing and cleansing they are in no wise curative, because they do not reach the blood where the trouble is located. You can never cure Eczema with outside treatment; the blood must be purified. S. S. S. is the best treatment for the disease. It goes down into the circulation, neutralizes the acids and humors with which the blood is infected, and makes the blood-current fresh and healthy. Then instead of fiery, acrid matter oozing out through the pores and glands, irritating the cuticle, the skin is nourished by a rich, cooling, healthy stream of blood. S. S. S. removes every trace of the disease, and when the cure is complete the skin is left smooth and free from any eruption. MEASURED PU

To Full Stature of Such Events Did State Fair.

BREEDERS' GAZETTE DEVOTES FIVE PAGES TO COMMENT.

MATERIAL FOR A GREAT STATE FAIR WAS GATHERED HERE.

BEST ELEMENTS PRESENT.

The Breeders' Gazette, of Chicago, the best known publication of its kind perhaps in the world, devotes two full pages in its current number to a report of the Kentucky State Fair of 1907. Two columns of these two pages form an introduction written by Mr. W. R. Goodwin, of Chicago, the editor of the Breeders' Gazette. Mr. Goodwin spent two days at the Kentucky State Fair, and gives his views of the exhibition in a manner, according to the State Fair managers, quite satisfactory to them. The introduction mentioned is in the nature of an editorial and is such a graphic pen picture of the "big show" that was conducted in Louisville work before last that the Courier-Journal feels justified in reproducing it in full. It is as follows:

The Kentucky State Fair last week measured up to the full stature of such an event in nearly all essentials. Its chief lack was a suitable setting. History need hardly be rehearsed. The rivalry and conflict of last season between the chief agricultural city and the chief commercial city in Kentucky over an exhibition of live stock and farm products now live only in memory. The emergency show, the partial exhibit, of the officially-sanctioned State Fair at Louisville last fall found shelter at Churchill Downs, the Jockey Club's race track, lying at the edge of the city. It was hoped, it was expected, that before another fair permanent grounds would be selected and a start made toward adequate equipment. But such affairs do not move swiftly. Negotiations were opened for the purchase of the other race track property at Douglas Park, and by a five to four vote of the Board of Agriculture, its purchase was ordered, provided the title would be shown to be good. This could not be done, however, and the high price asked for the Douglas Park grounds, with its equipment little suited to the purposes of a State Fair, decided the board to make no effort toward securing a perfected title. Hence it is believed that the race track properties have now been put out of the running as a permanent home for the Kentucky State Fair. The location committee will renew its activities, although the application of the traditional corkscrew would not succeed in opening their minds so that the public can see what is in them at this time. Assurance is made, however, that within sixty or ninety days a site will be selected, and it is intimated that search will be made for a suitable plot of ground without improvements, which can be taken in hand and planned in all particulars to meet the requirements of a State Fair, as outlined by the example of sister States and indicated by the experience of two years' attempt by the Kentucky fair managers in quarters singularly unsuited to such a show.

To Spend With Discretion.

Consultation with members of the board revealed a fixed determination to expend with marked discretion the liberal sum now at their disposal, in the selection of grounds and in laying the foundation of an equipment. It is quite generally believed that the price asked for Douglas Park is excessive, and the present temper of the board is to move with the utmost caution in spending the money which has been provided for the home of the fair. The problem has been earnestly threshed out and differences of opinion appear to have been merged into a determination to work unitedly and discreetly for the best interests of this public educational institution. The members of the board are keenly alive in a practical way to the necessities of the situation as to space, and when that has once been decided, plans have been made to proceed in the light of the experience of other States as to equipment. Such a condition may appear peculiar in a State where horse racing holds such high favor as in Kentucky, but it is earnestly advocated that provision first be made for the proper housing of live stock and exhibition in a coliseum, before a race track is prepared and a grandstand built. Judging by the racing programme at the show last week, this would seem the part of wisdom, as it did not appeal with particular strength to the people. In a Commonwealth almost surfeited with horse racing, it seems altogether likely that such a feature may with propriety and profit be made of quite secondary importance at its State Fair.

* * *

Can Solve Problems.

These are problems for the solution of which the Kentucky stockmen are entirely competent. Record is merely made of the tangle into which affairs fell through a sharp difference of opinion as to the purchase of Douglas Park, which appears to have been happily straightened out by the tangle into which the title had managed to get itself. It is a pleasure to record further than unanimity in the councils of the board, and a determination so evident to lay broad and deep the foundations of a great State Fair, which shall be an adequate exponent of the past and present glories of this famous State of blue grass, farm products and live stock.

It was a fortnight week of Louisville. Live stock, overflowed accommodations, none too suitable at the best, but every effort was made to provide as large a degree of comfort as was possible under the circumstances. Free from the conflict of date with the Bluegrass Fair at Lexington, this exhibit gathered entries from far and wide, commanding in its sweep Massachusetts on the East, Tennessee on the South and Wisconsin on the Northwest. The material for a great State Fair, one in fact as well as name, was gathered. The race horse barns across the mile track were called into requisition to shelter the blue ribbon of the cattle and the ponies, and the horses, while additional space was demanded for the congestion of sheep. Mangers were built and all stock was made as comfortable as the hot weather permitted. A splendid though it was for a tent in which to exhibit the cattle, one could not be obtained, the unreasonable coolness of the summer had lulled the management into forgetfulness of the terror of a September rain south of the Ohio river, and in consequence no provision was made for an exhibition tent. The track in front of the grand stand radiated waves of heat that would have made fortunes if pondensed into bricketines, and the adipose Shorthorns were soon driven from the track to seek the shelter of a covered alleyway between two stables, in which to await the decision of the judge. The Herefords tried it under and out of shelter, and finally finished in good form before the grand stand, as if the scorching rays of the morning sun had little effect on Hereford hair and hide. It was rather a trying week on stock and spectators, but cheerfulness and good nature reigned supreme.

Characteristic Hospitality.

The characteristic hospitality of the Bluegrass country aided not a little in the maintenance of this good nature. The Kentucky State Fair undertakes to do the honors for the entertainment of its exhibitors and other guests than any other fair, and it does it well. That openheartedness which leaves no doubt as to the genuineness of its courtesy. The visitor is made to feel at home, to understand that everything in sight is his, and that he will give pleasure to his hosts by helping himself. No one regretted the inadequacy of stalling and conditions for the horses, as the management and it is difficult to imagine the details of it to the courtesies of a management which left the conveniences to which the State Fair exhibits and visitors are entitled in the modern view of the subject.

The amusement features were surely in ample supply. Chief among those which may be classed among the legitimate was the air ship, which was a ship in fact as well as name, as she answered her rudder with promptness and sailed boldly into the face of the wind, tacking at the will of Knabenshue, rising and settling again under absolute control, a striking illustration of the combined efficiency of the gasbag and the gasoline engine in aerial navigation. The midway held its accustomed medley of "attractions," but its patronage seemed so small, compared to the real educational exhibits of the fair, as to lead to the happy conclusion that fairgoers seek something more substantial than the big snake and the fat woman—more really if not materially substantial. One exhibit that spiced its performances too highly was promptly closed by the authorities.

All Elements of Real Fair.

All of the elements of a real State fair were present. Kentucky corn is behind somewhat, although no apprehension of frost before its maturity is entertained. In all other products of the field and garden, the exhibition made clinching demonstration of a remarkably productive season. It was well assembled and the aisles of this section were crowded all week long. The beginning of a capital poultry show were on exhibition, and a bench show of collies added interest. Marked development has been made in the machinery exhibit, which was quartered inside the track, and a great many visitors found their way to it. In variety and in excellence it afforded a fine foundation for an exhibit which will grow to rival that of the older fairs. In brief, evidence was ample that the only thing lacking to a well-rounded and altogether satisfactory State fair is a well-ordered home for it. It is astonishing how quickly these State fairs grow into magnitude and leap into positions of commanding importance when once opportunity is given them to expand. Kentucky's experience runs on all fours with that of the States which have preceded in this work. When once the proper foundations have been laid, when once the people see the sensible use that has been made of public funds appropriated for the equipment of State fair grounds, they give hearty approval, and the work of development proceeds almost unobstructed. Kentucky is completing a new Statehouse, and no taint of scandal hangs to it. Its public coffers are full and it rests on the wisdom of the State Board of Agriculture so to order its ways that the people may approve its selection of a site and its preliminary plans for equipment, and the rest will be easy sailing.

Cream of Eastern Circuits.

Not only did the cream of the Eastern fair circuits rise to the top at Louisville, but some important sections of the Northwest circuit made the long journey from Milwaukee to join issue below Mason & Dixon's line. Fair managers should lay the lesson to heart. A national circuit, giving the showmen an opportunity to make one fair after another without unreasonable tax on their stock, will fill to overflowing the accommodations of the big fairs and present attractions in the way of finished stock that will crowd the gates with farmers. Cattle from the Atlantic coast, swine from Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana; sheep and cattle from Wisconsin, Ohio and Indiana and horses and ponies from Illinois, joined with a most admirable representation from Kentucky herds, flocks and studs to make decidedly one of the best aggregations of stock that the big fairs will assemble this year. Only in horses is the minor chord touched. The exhibit of horses was below that of last season in number at least. The exhibit of jacks was impressive and some excellent displays of young saddle-bred horses were made, but in its entirety the horse section suffered somewhat by comparison with the exhibit assembled on this ground last year. Even at that some who professed to know declared the ring of aged gaited saddle geldings was the best seen in Kentucky this season. The facts seem to be that the State is pretty well bare of finished saddle horses, at least of the five-gaited class. Some few good horses appeared, both in light and heavy harness, while the display of ponies was very impressive.

The official statement of entries in different sections reads thus: Beef cattle, 300; dairy cattle, 250; swine, 400; sheep and goats, 375; horses, 250; jacks, 75; ponies, 60, and mules, 90.

Gate receipts were very gratifying. Probably the highest record for a day was around 25,000. Although much more liberal estimate than this was made by the city papers, the treasurer's report will confirm the smaller figure. Louisville rendered fairly royal support, although the facilities for reaching the grounds are not enticing. One double track trolley line carries the crowd. Fortunately night attractions had been provided and thousands remained to see the fireworks and the acrobats, else the trolley would have been sadly swamped in clearing the grounds at the close of the afternoon's programme. The fair managers are keenly alive to the need of locating grounds which may be reached by steam roads, for the transportation of the people as well as exhibits. The weather was of the old-fashioned fair-going sort, under which the Kentuckian seemed to thrive, but which was a trifle trying to those accustomed to a less fervent sun. Except for a little shower on Wednesday morning rain did not interfere, and altogether conditions were quite ideal, enabling a most encouraging record to be written at the 1907 Kentucky State Fair.

HANDSOME QUARTERS

The Tinsley-Mayer Engraving Company To Return To the Courier-Journal Office Building.

TO OCCUPY ENTIRE NORTH END OF FIFTH FLOOR.

The Tinsley-Mayer Engraving Company, which was burnt out in the recent Courier-Journal building fire, is soon to be installed in the reconstructed building. They have leased the entire north end of the fifth floor, giving them an open room with an area of some 4,000 square feet. The space is to be specially fitted up in every detail for the making of illustrations, and when completed, in a few weeks, they will have the best-equipped plant for general engraving business that exists outside of Chicago and New York.

The company is now in full operation in temporary quarters on Green street, between Third and Fourth avenues. In their Courier-Journal quarters they are to have an immense skylight improvement which will enable them very materially to their half-tone and zinc etching work. The Tinsley-Mayer Engraving Company has rapidly developed into a big concern, and say they will be mighty glad to get back under the Courier-Journal roof.

DELEGATES READY FOR WATERWAYS CONVENTION.

Board of Trade Delegation Will Be Headed By President W. W. Hite.

With the time of the Deep Waterways Convention, to be held in Memphis October 4 and 5, approaching, the members of the Louisville Board of Trade who will form a delegation to the convention are making preparations for the trip. W. W. Hite, president of the Board of Trade, who before he was elected to the presidential chair was chairman of the Navigation Improvement Committee, will head the delegation.

James F. Buckner, secretary of the Board of Trade, also will be one of the delegates. At the last convention in St. Louis Mr. Buckner was elected on the Board of Governors for Kentucky. The Louisville delegation consequently will be able to have a "say-so" at the convention, at which, it is expected, fully 3,000 representatives of different parts of the country, including President Roosevelt and Senators and Governors, will be present.

To Lecture On Citizenship.

Dr. E. L. Powell will deliver a lecture in the South Louisville Christian church Friday at 7:30 p. m. on the subject: "Citizenship in the Republic."

Revival services will begin in the South Louisville church next Sunday. The Rev. B. N. Fenner will assist the pastor, Edward B. Richey. All are cordially invited to attend these services.

THREE LOUISVILLE COUPLES WED IN JEFFERSONVILLE.

Alexander M. Adams and Miss Marie E. Brashear, both of Louisville, were married in Jeffersonville yesterday by Magistrate James S. Kelgwin. The groom is a motorman for the Louisville City Railway Company and was born in Meade county, Ky., October 18, 1879. The bride is a native of Nelson county, Ky., and was born December 17, 1886.

On a license issued just before Sunday midnight, Charles P. Edmunds, a street car conductor, and Miss Dacre McCrocklin, both of Louisville, were married by Magistrate Kelgwin in Jeffersonville. Why the pair came so late was not explained, as Silas McCrocklin, father of the bride-elect, a liveryman, accompanied the couple and made an affidavit that his daughter was born in Mt. Washington, Ky., on February 3, 1887. The groom was born at Glasgow, Ky., March 23, 1883.

A request was received yesterday by Magistrate J. S. Kelgwin, of Jeffersonville, to announce that on August 7, 1907, he officiated at the marriage of Paul J. Aberli and Mrs. Elizabeth Reich, of Louisville, both of whom had been married before, and wanted to surprise their friends by getting married secretly. The groom is a native of Switzerland and was born June 26 1871. By occupation he is a butcher, and his first wife died November 21, 1903. The bride was born in Louisville November 12, 1870, and her former husband died in 1902.

IF NECESSARY

Aldermen May Be Enjoined On the $10,000 Ordinance.

DR. MECHLING SAYS HE IS OPPOSED TO PASSAGE.

BELIEVES IT WILL BE DEFEATED IN BOARD.

CLAIMED IT IS ILLEGAL.

The ordinance appropriating $10,000 to be used in the prosecution of Dr. S. A. Bradley and others will have a hard road to travel in the Board of Aldermen at the meeting of the General Council to-night. Well-informed attorneys assert that the passage of the ordinance would be illegal, inasmuch as the General Council has no right to levy a tax or to appropriate money already collected by taxation for any other than municipal purposes. Some say it will be defeated.

It was pointed out that to employ special counsel to prosecute Dr. Bradley and his associates is in no sense a municipal purpose, as the warrants from the Police Court were issued in the name of the Commonwealth, and the indictments in the Circuit Court will be in the name of the Commonwealth. The State provides and pays its own officers to prosecute Commonwealth cases.

Talk of An Injunction.

Should an effort be made in the upper board to pass the ordinance, it is said that an injunction will be taken out immediately, prohibiting the Aldermen from taking such action. There was a rumor current yesterday to the effect that arrangements looking to that end had already been made, and that if the necessity arises an injunction will be asked for. Under the law any citizen of Louisville who is a taxpayer has a right to apply for such an injunction.

From indications no injunction will be necessary to prevent the passage of the ordinance. Dr. H. E. Mechling, a member of the Board of Aldermen, when asked last night whether he had heard talk relative to the taking out of an injunction to prevent the passage of the ordinance, said he had not.

* * *

Dr. Mechling Against Injunction.

"I don't think such a step necessary," he said, " as I believe the majority of the members of the board will refuse to vote for the ordinance. I, for one, shall vote against it, and I have heard others of the Aldermen express themselves in the same way."

William H. Newman, also a member of the Board of Aldermen, is opposed to the passage of the ordinance, and will fight it from the floor when the time comes. According to rumor, the applying for an injunction will be resorted to as a last measure in an effort to defeat the passage of the ordinance to-night appropriating the $10,000.

Mayor Bingham said yesterday that there was no doubt in his mind relative to the legality of the ordinance. He said that the ordinance was legal, and that he thought there was no doubt about its passing.

OHIO RIVER'S SUDDEN RISE RETARDS IMPROVEMENTS.

Capt. Harry Burgess, engineer in charge of the river improvements for the Louisville district, is still complaining about the trouble that the high water is causing him in the way of progress on the new dam across the Ohio river at Louisville. He was doing very well last week with a stage lower than five feet, but Sunday a sudden rise brought the river over the six-foot mark and swept some of his cofferdam structure away, though entailing but little expense. Capt. Burgess despairs of making much headway on the new dam this season. He has been greatly retarded in all local work on the river for the past three years, owing to the unusually high stage of the water for the summer season.

THIRTY-SIX OCTOBERS AND WEATHER RECORDS.

From data covering a period of thirty-six years, compiled by F. J. Walz, district forecaster of the Louisville Weather Bureau, for the month of October, the citizens of Louisville may have some idea as to what to expect in the way of weather for the present month. For the past thirty-six years the normal temperature for the month [illegible] and the coldest mo[illegible] 1895, with an average t[illegible] 53 degrees. The highest tem[illegible] corded was 91 degrees on C[illegible] 1897. The lowest temperature was [illegible] degrees on October 31, 1887. The average rainfall for the month has been 2.54 inches. The greatest monthly rainfall was 8.05 inches in October, 1883. The least monthly rainfall was .27 of an inch in October, 1904.

POLICE COURT BACK IN OLD QUARTERS.

After holding its sessions for the past two months in the Criminal Court room in the courthouse annex, the Police Court, presided over by Judge Randolph Blain, moved back into its old quarters in the City Hall building for its session yesterday morning. During the two months in which the court has been held elsewhere the court room has been repainted and varnished, and new linoleum has been placed on the floor, so that the room now presents a new and greatly improved condition. By the brightness of the environment the prisoners who were presented yesterday seemed elated in spirit, and a degree of home-like feeling and dignity was added to the court. The removal of the Police Court to the Criminal Court room during the summer was made necessary both on account of the work of its improvement and from the noise made by the construction of the City Hall annex.

KING HORSE REIGN SUPREME

all the honors of an active life, alike in war and peace, and then hid himself from his country in a tour of the world, when he finally returned to America this land has never paid a like oration to any man. Salvator's reappearance before the public last night as like that of the great soldier coming back again in te arena of life. The deeds of the old horse on the turf seventeen and eighteen years ago lived again. The prowess of the present-day champions was forgot for a night, and Salvator was proclaimed by the world of fashion still king of the turf and stud. In all his brilliant achievements of the track, his great merits were not appreciated more in no time of his career than last night, when, under the brilliant electric lights, he paraded the tanbark for the first time in his whole life before an assemblage which only at a horse show can be gathered together.

Arabs Make Great Hit.

The second special exhibit of the evening, and one which also caught the popular fancy, was that of the seven Arabs from the stable of Homer Davenport. The procession was headed by a genuine Arab stallion, gray, mounted by a genuine Bedouin, bedecked in the garb of the Bedouins on their native deserts. He poised gracefully the long feather-tipped lance used by the Arabs as their only weapon of warfare, and cantered around the ring with a speed and grace that pleased much and many. Obeyran, a gray stallion, twenty-seven years of age, and one which has more history attached to his career than most people, was piloted about the ring by Mr. Davenport himself.

Class 54—Delivery Outfit.

It was twenty-three minutes after 8 o'clock when the bugler sounded the call for the first class of the evening, Class 54, that for single local delivery outfits. Six entries responded to the call. They were Hawk, a black gelding drawing a bright satisfying looking red dray, representing Henry Freuchtenicht; Niger, also a black gelding, attached to an orange-colored wagon of the Benzole Garment Cleaning Company; Billy, a gray gelding which drew a black Stewart Dry Goods Company delivery wagon with yellow running gear; Happy Prince, another gray gelding, and Handy Man, a roan gelding attached to Seidel's red Crutcher & Starks's delivery carts; Frank Fehr's fine stable of heavy harness horses was represented by Pat, a great, grey gelding, caparisoned in bright harness and drawing a vehicle which seconed to be a beer wagon.

The tiers of seats had not filled as well as they did soon after the first class was over but interest was keen in the show. When Pat was tied with the blue there was much applause which went to show that it was a popular choice. The Stewart Dry Goods Company entry drew the second ribbon. The Crutcher & Starks fought it out closely and the third ribbon went to Happy Prince, while Handy Man was tied with the fourth. J. W. Ogden, of New York, and R. A. Fairbairn, of Westfield, N. J., were the judges of the class.

Class 46—Local Heavy Harness.

The second class of the night, No. 46, that for heavy harness horses owned by residents of Jefferson county or of the neighboring counties in Indiana, saw the $100 plate offered by Henry Besten go to Dorothy, a fine chestnut mare owned by Mrs. T. Lytle Hudson, of Louisville. Count, a bay gelding entry owned by John H. Caperton, drew the second award and Lawrence Jones' King Fashion, which had been regarded with some consternation by the drivers of the other entries, had to be satisfied with the third award. All the horses drew well and pointed depot wagons, except Mr. Caperton's entry, which pulled a swell victoria. The judges in this class were Messrs. Ogden and Fairbairn, the same who had made the awards in the preceding class. Robert, a bay gelding, owned by M. Sabel, and Queen, a bay mare owned by Mrs. Louis John Unz, were the fourth and fifth entries who did not draw an award.

Class 25—Saddle Horses.

When the blue ribbon was tied on Montgomery Ward, Ball Bros.' entry in the five-gaited saddle class hisses from some quarters of the building were heard over the cheers which greeted the decision from other parts. Golden Glow, the entry of A. S. Burr, of Bement, Ill., which was ridden by Russell Railey, of Versailles, was the popular choice, and when Mr. Railey rode the fine animal around the ring after the red ribbon had been tied to the bridle he was greeted with chorus after chorus of cheers. In the eyes of the crowd the performance of the mare entered by Mr. Burr was better than that of the horse ridden by Ernest Ball. There were three entries in the class, all of them chestnuts, the third being Sir Bolliver, a chestnut gelding entered by W. J. Roe, of Oshkosh, Wis., and ridden by Howard Ball, of Versailles.

From the start the decision, in the estimation both of the audience and the judge, Scott Isbell, of Bowling Green, there was not much difference in the performance of the two which were decided afterward to be first and second best. They went through all their various paces without a hitch, the mare appealing more to the fancy of the audience than the horse, although these was many a hand for both of them. It was only after the closest and most careful scrutiny that Mr. Isbell was able to decide that he thought the horse the better of the two entries.

Sir Bellver, while counted able to cope with most horses of his kind, did not, in the mind of the judge, show the same quality as the other two. The first prize, valued at $100, is in a souvenir plate offered by the American Saddle Horse Breeders' Association; the second, $60; while the third was $40.

TO-NIGHT'S FINE PROGRAMME.

Some Interesting Classes and Some Magnificent Animals To Be Shown.

Interest in the programme offered for the Horse Show to-night is so diversified that it cannot be said to center on any one class. The open classes promise to bring out some of the best horses in the country, and some which heretofore have done themselves and their owners proud in the local ring. Society people will find much to note in the local classes, in which are entered the best horses seen on the streets of Louisville and in the parks, and which will be driven by society people. Several society women, who are yet to be named for to-night, will drive in the ladies' obstacle class.

The twenty-five mounted policemen, spick and span in uniforms such as the local police never have worn before, will perform some fancy evolutions as well as contend among themselves for the blue ribbon. The rivalry among the police riders is most intense, and all are determined to do their very best.

The saddle-horse classes will bring out some of the best animals in the State, and the open classes for harness horses are to bring out the finest horseflesh in the country and some never shown here before. The special exhibitions will include Salvator and Homer Davenport's Arabians, which aroused so much interest last night.

Mr. C. W. Watson, of Fairmount Farms, Fairmount, W. Va.; Mr. George Watson, of New York City, and Mr. Lawrence Jones, of Louisville, will be represented to-night in the spectacular four-in-hand rings which are scheduled for the last thing on the programme.

THE ALL-NIGHT TAILOR, NOW.

[New York Times.]

Should it be borne in upon you suddenly—say at 4 o'clock in the morning—that you need a new suit of clothes, beginning with to-night you may have the services of the all-night tailor a few yards away from Times Square. The beat of the heart of the town has so quickened of recent years that even in the deadest hours of the night Times Square is busy enough to command the attention of tradespeople. Banking hours near by are continuous from sunrise to sunrise; restaurants and barbers' shops are open at all hours, and the first of the tradesmen are falling into line.

The tailor who is willing to measure and fit customers all night made his announcement in the newspapers yesterday. He says that his shop will clean and press suits of clothes or make new suits during any or all of the twenty-four hours. His is the first shop of its kind to run all night in New York.

ONLY THREE PIEC[illegible]

MRS. WOODS' LOSS OF JEWELRY LESS THAN SUPPOSED.

Arrives In Louisville Without Any Trace of Missing Valuables.

Mrs. W. P. Wood, accompanied by her husband, arrived in Louisville yesterday from New York, where, while shopping at the Bellmont Hotel, she was robbed of three pieces of costly jewelry. At the home of her mother, Mrs. Charles Hewitt, 130 Caldwell street, last night, Mrs. Wood declined to go into details relative to the robbery. She said, however, that she had failed to recover her jewels and had given up all hope of ever recovering them.

Mrs. Wood said that her loss was not as great as was at first reported. The thief stole only three pieces of jewelry, a diamond pin, diamond brooch and diamond pendant. These articles she had left lying in her jewel case in a drawer of the dresses in her room at the hotel while she and her husband were temporarily absent. Upon their return Mrs Wood discovered her loss and immediately reported it to the hotel management. According to Mr. Hewitt, father of Mrs. Wood, every effort was made on the part of the New York police authorities to recover the jewelry. Detectives were assigned to the case. Mr. and Mrs. Wood, after remaining over in New York two days longer than they had intended in the hope of regaining possession of the stolen diamonds, finally gave up in disgust, and leaving New York arrived in Louisville yesterday morning.

Mr. Hewitt said last night that he considered his daughter fortunate in not having suffered a greater loss than she did. Fortunately, he said, she wore most of her jewels on the night of the robbery, else her loss might have approximated $6,000, the amount first given out.

Mr. Wood, after accompanying his wife to Louisville, remained here only a few hours. He left last night for St. Louis, where he has certain business matters to look after, and from St. Louis he will go direct to his coffee plantation in Southern Mexico.

Mrs. Wood declined to place a value on her missing jewels last night.

$1,000 LICENSE

WILL BE ASKED FOR IN DR. MECHLING'S ORDINANCE.

Thinks $150 Not Enough For the Louisville Saloonkeepers To Pay.

Dr. H. E. Mechling, a member of the Board of Aldermen, has prepared an ordinance the terms of which provide for increasing the cost of a saloon license from $250 to $1,000 a year. The ordinance, of necessity, will have to be introduced in the lower board, and Dr. Mechling said last night that he was not sure it would be introduced to-night. He said he had not decided as yet who of the lower board he would ask to introduce the ordinance for him. He said also that there are certain statistics he wishes to get together and have read to the Council when the ordinance is introduced to make it more effective if possible, and he is not sure that he will have gathered these statistics by to-night.

According to the provisions of the city charter, the General Council may fix the fee for saloon licenses at not less than $150 a year nor more than $1,000 a year. In addition to increasing the fee to the limit, the ordinance prepared by Dr. Mechling also contains a clause prohibiting the operation of a saloon in connection with a grocery store. It also provides stringent regulations against the sale of intoxicating liquors on Sunday and makes it unlawful for a saloonkeeper to obstruct by means of blinds a view into his barroom from the street.

Dr. Mechling, author of the ordinance, is a member of the Young Men's Christian Association. He is strongly in favor of temperance, and believes that high license will solve the saloon question.

"Should my ordinance pass it will have the effect of putting out of business all these barrel houses," he said last night. "It will also do away with these small saloons in the outskirts, and concentrate the saloon largely in the central district of the city."

LINEMAN THREATENED WITH BLOOD POISON[illegible]G.

Hattiesburg, Miss., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Miss., a lumber town situated miles from here on the Mississippi Central railroad, feeling against Italians has grown so strong that they are packing up and preparing to move from the neighborhood. The trouble grew out of the complaint of an Italian that his children were excluded from the public school. He was taken into the woods Friday night and given a severe whipping. The situation has been aggravated by the demands of the employes of the Newman Lumber Company at Sumrall for an increase in wages. The Italians and negroes have been warned not to work there after to-morrow.

DISTILLING CAMPHOR.

Describing a trip to a Formosan camphor camp, a writer in Chambers' Journal says:

The whole air is pervaded by a strong odor of camphor, and a big camphor tree about four feet in diameter has been felled and sawn longitudinally. Two men with adzes are cutting off six-inch strips to feed the retorts of the camphor still, which, having received the redolent fragments, are heated by a slow fire. The camphor vapor which is thus given off passes by a tube into a cooling box partially immersed in water, where the sublimated camphor condenses in snow-like crystals. The chips are renewed every twenty-four hours, and every eighth day the fire is put out and the crystals removed from the box. The crude product is then dumped into vats furnished with holes for drainage, and beneath, in vessels placed for the purpose is gathered the yellow camphor oil for which there is such a universal demand. The camphor itself, still containing some oil, is then conveyed to the refining factory at Taipeh, the oil being sent for a further elaborate treatment to Japan.

At the Taipeh works the crude camphor undergoes a number of further processes, consisting of drying, heating and evaporation, until it becomes refined A grade camphor.

TREES GROWING IN CHURCHES.

[London Daily News.]

The parish church of Ross, Herefordshire, possesses some singular ecclesiastical "ornaments" in two fine elm trees flourishing one on each side of the pew where once sat the famous "Man of Ross," John Kyrle. They are fabled locally to have sprung up as a token of divine wrath against a profane rector of Ross who had cut down some trees which Kyrle had planted in the churchyard.

Trees in or on churches are not uncommon. At Kempsey, in the adjoining county of Worcester, a large horse chestnut tree has grown in the chancel from the tomb of Sir Edmund Wylde, who died about 1629. On the tower of Fishguard church, near Boston, grows a lusty beech, and a similar tree may be seen on the tower of Culmstock, in Devonshire. Apart from its picturesque beauty, the parish church of Crick, in Northamptonshire, is or was recently remarkable for two trees growing out of the masonry about fifty feet from the ground.

HUGHES' BOOM

Prevalent In Colorado and Other States.

NINETY PER CENT. OF THE WORKERS FOR HIM,

ACCORDING TO STATEMENT OF F. G. HEATON.

SLAP FOR SENATOR FORAKER.

Washington, Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Straw votes for the presidential nomination which have been taken by certain Republican papers do not entirely agree with the opinion of men who have been traveling over the country. This is especially true of the Western States. Frank G. Heaton, editor of the National Live Stock Bulletin, is in Washington to-night, after several months' stay in Colorado, Wyoming, Idaho, the Dakotas and Nebraska. He says the strength of Gov. Hughes, of New York, is second only to that of Roosevelt.

"I believe I am safe in saying," said Mr. Heaton, "that 90 per cent. of the workers in the eWst are for Hughes. Of course, all are hoping that they will get a chance to vote for Roosevelt again, but if they cannot they do not indorse the proposition of having him dictate his successor. As for the Democrats, they are clamoring for the South to put up a man for the Presidency. They do not believe Bryan can lead them to victory, and the man most talked of is John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi. The Western people believe the time for naming a Southerner is here, and if not Williams, they feel that Judge George Gray, of Delaware, can rightfully be classed as a Southern man. In the event that the party does not name a Southern man, the people of the West are, I believe, for Gov. Johnson, of Minnesota."

Foraker Ignored.

The White House to-day announced the appointment of Bernhard Dettman for the Cincinnati collectorship. Senator Foraker's recommendation of Max Berghein was ignored and Dettman, who was indorsed by Secretary Taft, landed the plum. That the President no longer gives any atention to the recommendations of the Ohio Senators is now evident. For years it has been the custom of an Ohio Senator, such as Senator Foraker, to control this appointment in his home town. The President, however, realizes that he can expect little from the Ohio Senators, and is losing no opportunity to turn them down.

The Ohio collectorship employs 250 deputies and storekeep-gaugers, all of whom will hustle for Taft delegates to the State Republican Convention.

The old constitutional provision that the President makes appointments "by and with the advice and consent of the Senate" is likely to be heard from in the upper branch of Congress this winter, and Senator Foraker may be expected to have a good deal to say on this subject.

Lively Times At White House.

There was certainly a lively time at the White House last week, and the Baltimore Sun fitly describes dairy-like the continuous performance and moving picture scenes as follows:

No. 1. Wednesday—Royal family, Prince, Princess Loeb and the bull pup arrive from Oyster Bay.

No. 2. Thursday—Quentin, the snake charmer, gives performance. President admits Oklahoma to the Union and three snakes to his secret office.

No. 3. Friday—Plays the Rt. Rev. and the Rt. Hon., the bishop of London, for tennis championship of the world. Throws dice to decide submarine torpedo boat contest and cuts the cards to see who is to carry coal to the battleship fleet.

No. 4. Saturday—Talks three hours to bishop of Hallin in unrivaled monologue; settles twenty-three questions of State and receives the champion wrestler of Japan with open arms and a jui pitsu welcome. Receives gold sword from Japanese and deposits it among the bric-a-brac.

No. 5—Starts for little jaunt through Maryland, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kentucky, Arkansas, Tennessee.

Such a rushing life makes a moving picture exhibition seem as still as a mural painting.

Overstreet Booms Fairbanks.

Representative James Overstreet, of Indianapolis, believes the Fairbanks forces will show up at the National Republican Convention strong enough to make the winner feel that he has had a fight.

"The man who gets the nomination will have to beat Vice President Fairbanks," said Mr. Overstreet to-night.

"Mr. Fairbanks is gaining strength daily, and it is coming froc all sections of the country. He is going to fool a whole lot of people who are trying to make themselves think he isn't in it. I predict that when convention time rolls around Fairbanks will be in the lead, especially if he keeps on frowing and gaining strength like he has recently.

"There will not be the slightest wavering among the delegates from the Hoosier State. They will urge their favorite son from Indianapolis just as long as his name is before the convention. No candidate will have a more loyal set of delegates from his home State than the Vice President. There will be no breaking away at any stage of the game. The delegation will stick together and in this way the men from the Hoosier State are going to cut a big figure in the National Convention."

The Prohibition Wave.

"The recent wave of prohibition which has spread over the South, somewhat stronger in a few sections than others, will not, I believe, prove universally popular among the people," said Bernard Frank, a prominent merchant of Birmingham, Ala.

"Not only do these drastic laws deprive the States of many millions of dollars in revenue, but they result in business depression and emigration. Laws of this character have been tried in other States and proved unsuccessful. Why should we adopt me?

"In Alabama we have a law that prohibits any railroad from carrying a package containing liquor into any county that has local option. The penalty for violating this law is very severe. How a railroad is to know what a package contains the law does not state, and it is difficult, therefore, to enforce the law to the letter. Birmingham has a population of 60,000, and I am sure that if a vote were taken the city would vote against prohibition."

THOUSANDS GREET SECRETARY ROOT

ROUSING WELCOME IN THE CITY OF MEXICO.

SPLENDID APARTMENTS IN CHAPULETPEC PALACE.

TWO CARRIAGES AND AUTO.

Mexico City, Sept. 30.—Greeted by several thousand persons, among whom were many members of the American colony in this city, Secretary of State, Elihu Root, arrived in Mexico City at 4 o'clock this afternoon on the special Presidential train which brought him from the border as the guest of the Mexican Government. Accompanying him were Mrs. Root and Miss Edith Root.

As the train pulled into the national station the artillery band played an American patriotic air and the statesman was given a rousing welcome. Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Ignacio Mariscal, who headed the local reception committee, was one of the first to greet Mr. Root on his arrival at the station. The board of governors of the city and the aldermen, in a body, were on hand to extend official welcome to the visitors. Mrs. Landa Y. Escandon, Mrs. Fernando Pimentel Y. Fagoaga and other prominent women of the city, greeted Mrs. Root and Miss Root and extended them welcome.

The party was at once conducted outside the station where carriages were waiting to take Secretary Root and party to Chapultepec. Every arrangement had been made for the reception of the distinguished visitors at Chapultepec. The gendarmerie band played American and Mexican patriotic airs. Shortly after the arrival at Chapultepec, tea was served. The officials of the city and Federal Government with their wives were present. There were no other functions on the entertainment programme for the day and Mr. Root and party will be left to recuperate after the long journey from Washington here.

In accordance with the Mexican custom, Chapultepec castle was formally turned over to Mr. Root, who was told that the historic palace would be his residence during his stay in Mexico. The apartments that Mr. Root and family will occupy are the most elaborate in Mexico. A telegraph room with two of the most expert operators from the central station in charge was fitted up and will be at the disposal of Mr. Root. An automobile and two carriages pulled by the finest horses of the Government stables, have been set aside for the use of the Secretary and his family.

FAST TRAIN DERAILED AND TWO ARE KILLED.

'Frisco's Meteor Flyer Ditched While Going At Great Speed and the Wreck Catches On Fire.

St. Louis, Sept. 30.—The fast train on the 'Frisco road known as the Meteor, due in St. Louis at 11:30 o'clock a. m., was derailed and wrecked near Dixon, 135 miles southwest of St. Louis, at 7 o'clock this morning and according to official advices received at the 'Frisco general offices here, two persons were killed, one seriously injured and the passengers were badly bruised, but none were killed.

THE DEAD.

ENGINEER CHAMBERS, of Springfield, Mo.

MAIL CLERK FRANK E. CRISSY, of St. Louis.

THE INJURED.

Fireman Stockstill.

The engine and forward portion of the train overturned, the cars taking fire and being consumed. Only meager particulars have been received by the 'Frisco headquarters.

An appeal for assistance was sent to Rolla, twenty-five miles east of the scene, and a special train bearing physicians, nurses and fire fighting apparatus was sent from there.

Dixon Hill is a steep grade sixteen miles in length and the engine jumped the track while speeding down the grade, tearing up a section of the track and ditching several cars. The cause of the derailment has not been learned.

LAST WORDS

"I Die Unprepared," Last Utterance Of a Borgia.

DYING COMES EASY, ACCORDING TO KING LOUIS XIV.

MARIE ANTOINETTE DISPLAYED COOLNESS AT END.

NAPOLEON THOUGHT OF PAST.

Montaigne has said somewhere in his voluminous writings: "Neither is there anything of which I am so inquisitive as the manner of men's deaths, their words, their bearing. Were I a writer of books I would teach men to die, would at the same time teach them to live."

Death holds a solemn mystery in store for each individual, and the manner in which it is met, especially by those who have won fame and honor on this earth, holds a potent fascination for all humanity, says a writer in the Washington Post.

The grim messenger had small fears for the ancients, who looked upon this world and the next as the calm spirit of their philosophy.

Anaxagoras, the great Ionian philosopher and friend of Pericles, was banished from Athens to die isolated from the life and things he loved, but he said proudly to those who would comfort the last hours of his life: "It is not I who have lost Athens; it is the Athenians who have lost me." His last words were for the youthful followers of his school of philosophy, and were: "Give the boys a holiday."

Cesare Borgia, the craftiest and cruelest man of a corrupt age, hated and feared by all and polluted by every foul crime in the calendar, was killed at a siege of the Castle of Biano, in 1507, and his dying words were: "I die unprepared."

Plato died thanking Providence and the guiding fortune of his life, first, that he was born a man and a Grecian, not a brute or barbarian, and, second, that he happened to live in the age of Socrates.

Sir Walter Raleigh, courtier, explorer, and discoverer of tobacco, was condemned to the scaffold. He mounted the steps firmly and with a trace of his courtly grace ran his finger over the keen edge of the executioner's ax, and smilingly said: "'Tis a sharp medicine, but a sure remedy for all ills."

Louis XIV., called Louis Le Grand, the greatest Bourbon ruler, was kindly even in death. To the weeping courtiers who waited and watched by his royal bedside he said, reproachfully: "Why weep ye? Did ye think I should live forever?" And later murmured: "I had thought dying had been harder."

Marie Antoinette, the outraged Queen of the revolution subjected to indignities and horrors unprecedented in the history of any nation, never lost her dignity as Queen or her womanly sympathies, and almost her last words were ones of courtesy. To the executioner on whose foot she had accidentally trodden while descending the steps to the guillotine she said, politely:

"Excuse me, sir; I did not do it intentionally," afterward adding, "Make haste."

The bill for her burial still lies on exhibition, and reads as follows: "The Widow Capet. For the coffin, 6 livres; for grave and gravediggers, 36 livres," amounting in all to 36.10, which was the "last sight draft" drawn in the name of Marie Antoinette on the treasury of France.

Her Prayer For Napoleon.

Empress Josephine's last words and prayers were for Napoleon. Gazing intently upon his portrait, which she carried ever with her, she prayed: "O God, watch over Napoleon while he remains in the desert of this world. Alas! though he has committed great faults, has he not expiated by great sufferings? Just God, Thou who best looked into his heart has seen with how ardent a desire for useful and durable improvements he was animated, solely not to approve my last petition, and not the image of my husband bear witness that my latest wish, my latest prayer were for him and my children, L'Isle d'Elbe — Napolean — Marie Louise!"

Queen Elizabeth lay on the floor refusing to be comforted, her attendants bracing her restless body with pillows, the only service she would permit. The great Queen was tortured with doubts and fears as to who should be her successor. To the suggestion of one of her courtiers that Lord Beauchamp, heir to the Suffolk claim, should succeed to England's throne, she shrieked hoarsely with her old-time temper: "I will have no rogue's son in my seat," and died, crying almost with her last anguished breath: "All my possessions for a moment of time!"

Marie Theresa, the great Austrian Empress, in response to her physician's suggestion that she take a sleeping draught, said haughtily: "I will not sleep; I wish to meet death awake."

Napoleon's last words were of former glories. "Tete d'armee," he murmured over and over again.

Charles II., the Merry Monarch of England, thought of his former mistress, Nell Gwyn, and his last request was: "Don't let poor Nellie starve."

Anne Boleyn, sentenced to be beheaded by the inhuman Henry VIII., mounted clasping her tiny hands about her neck, as she knelt to lay her head upon the block, said to her executioners: "It is small, very small, indeed."

Albert, Prince of Saxe-Coburg of Gotha, husband of Queen Victoria, died in 1861 with these last words on his lips: "I have had wealth, rank and power, but if these were all I had had, how wretched I should be."

Gen. Washington suffered much toward the last, and to his physician he said: "I die hard, but I am not afraid to go." Later, speaking with great difficulty, he said: "I am just going. Have me decently buried, but do not let my body be put into the vault in less than two days after I am dead. Do you understand me?" And when Dr. Carik nodded in assent, he murmured: "It is well."

Andrew Jackson died Sunday, June 8, 1845. Servants and slaves, as well as friends and relatives, thronged the sorrowing house, sobbing and wringing their hands, and to comfort them the grand old warrior said: "I go but a short time before you, and I want to meet you, white and black, in heaven," later repeating "black and white."

Maj. John Andre, the young British soldier who was concerned in Arnold's treasonable attempt and hanged as a spy, died with the pride and courage for one so young and full of the pride of life. At the execution he raised the handkerchief which bound his eyes, and, bowing politely to Gen. Greene and his officers, said: "All I request of you, gentlemen, is that, while I acknowledge the propriety of my sentence, you will bear me witness that I die like a brave man." Then, in an undertone, as he squared his young shoulders: "It will be but a momentary pang."

John Caldwell Calhoun, at one time Vice President of the United States and called the father of States' rights, died in 1850, with the approaching tragedy of his beloved country heavy on his grand spirit. "The South! The South!" he murmured over and over in anguish. "God knows what will become of her."

Webster Found Death Curious.

Webster whispered: "Life! Life! Death! Death! How curious it is!" His last coherent utterance was: "I still live!"

Sir Walter Scott's last words were addressed to his son-in-law. "Be virtuous," he admonished; "be religious, be a good man; nothing else can give you comfort when you come to lie here."

The German poet Schiller exclaimed: "Many things are growing clearer to my understanding."

Beethoven, the great musician, who was doomed never to hear his own compositions, said: "I shall hear in Heaven."

Gainsborough, the portrait and landscape painter, exclaimed: "We are all going to Heaven, and Van Dyke is of the company!"

Goethe, who mistook the twilight of death for the coming of the evening, said: "More light, more light."

At the time of his death, Robert Burns, the great peasant poet of Scotland, belonged to a body of Dumfries militia, of which he evidently entertained a mighty opinion, for his last request was: "Oh, don't let the awkward squad fire over me," a request which was nevertheless ignored.

George IV. of England started up from his deathbed with the cry to his page, Sir Wathen Waller: "Wally, Wally, what is this? It is death, my boy, and they have deceived me!"

Talleyrand in response to the King who called to inquire about his physical well-being, replied bitterly: "I am suffering the torments of the damned." And historians and epigrammatists have it that the monarch muttered beneath his breath, "Que deja" (What, already.)

Alexander Pope lightly replied to a friend who called to see him in his last hours: "Yes, my friend, I am dying of a hundred good symptoms."

Robert E. Lee was a patient sufferer, uttering an occasional short sentence, as his mind wandered back over the scenes of his military campaign: "Strike the tent," he is quoted as having said, then adding: "Tell Hill he must come up."

Danton, George-Jacques, monster of the French revolution, exclaimed to his executioner: "Show my head to the people; 'twill be worth the display."

* * *

Ingersoll's Death Serene.

Contrary to the pious prognostications of many people, Robert G. Ingersoll, the eminent agnostic, died serene in his unbelief. In response to his wife's query as to how he felt, his last words were: "O, better."

Machiavelli, the celebrated atheist, who died in 1530, maintained to the end his scoffing spirit: "I desire to go to hell and not to heaven. In the former place I shall enjoy the company of Popes, Kings and Princes, while in the latter are only beggars, monks, hermits and apostles."

Francois de Malherbe, called the father of French lyric poetry, had one ruling passion, purity of diction. To his confessor, who was piously striving to comfort his fleeting hours by presenting the joys of heaven in floundering, trite and vulgar phrases, he exclaimed angrily: "Hold your tongue, stupid; your wretched style only makes me out of conceit with heavenly joys."

Queen Victoria's days were heavy with sorrow on account of the Boer War, and she died praying, "Oh, that peace may come."

The sweet words of resignation and sublime belief of our martyred President William McKinley are still fresh in the public memory:

"Good bye, good bye, all; it is the Lord's way, and His will, not ours, be done."

ABOUT THE CRAB

Crustocean Sheds Its Covering Like Reptiles.

SOFT AFTER EVENT, BUT SKIN QUICKLY HARDENS.

TRAVELS QUICKLY AND IS SCAVENGER OF THE SEA.

GROWTH FAST WHEN YOUNG.

Hampton has been known generally among Virginians and somewhat at large as a center of the crab industry, and right well she maintains her reputation. But she must admit successful rivalry to another section of the prolific Chesapeake, though in this latter Maryland snares probably larger results than does Virginia says a writer in the Richmond Times-Dispatch. I refer to the locality of the Sounds—Pocomoke and Tangier—arms of Chesapeake Bay, lying, the one wholly and the other largely within the Virginia lines, on the northeast border, but worked and harvested mostly by citizens of Maryland.

The "soft crab" is a growing crab which must periodically burst its no-longer-growing shell, shedding like a snake, and much larger when emerging from its cast off shed. Within a few hours the soft skin hardens and it has once again a hard shell, which in turn must be cast off. Although a hard coat returns after a few hours when in salt water, yet if taken from the water, or even placed in brackish water, they will remain soft for days and until their death in such environment. The younger the crab the faster it grows, and the more frequently it must be shed. When matured, and the crab becomes a "jimmy crab," a "channel crab" or "old she-crab," whatever it may be called in localities it sheds no more.

It is then a "hard crab" for good and all, and the bravest thing for its inches that travels the seas; and it is by no means slow, traveling as rapidly and migrating, as many fishes do. A hard crab past the shedding stage is out for meat and gore. He is the scavenger of the sea, snapping at a steamboat that may disturb his feast, and it is a pretty large and voracious fish that will attempt to swallow the clawed crustacean. Even then it must be done with lightning rapidity. On the other hand, when shedding, as a "bus'ner" or "soft crab," is is afraid of its own shadow. It is powerless to do anything but swim, and that but slowly. It is then a prey to man, bird and fish, and even to its own tribe. In truth, when shedding it is more afraid of its own kith and kin than of anything else. Mr. Jimmy Crab will devour Mrs. Soft Crab if she does not elude him; mother and father will feast on the little members of the household if caught without their hard coats on. Harmless and small fish are brave when the helpless soft crab is in sight. They dote on soft-crab meat, and the soft crab is much used as fishing bait. The epicure can testify to what a luscious meal it furnishes. This is why when the shedding period approaches the coming "peeler" hikes it to shallow waters before dropping his armor. And it is also why the sounds of Virginia and Maryland, with their thousands of acres of shallow water and protecting grassy bottoms, are the resort of the toothsome soft crab. One of the evidences that the crab is migratory is the fact that no gravid mothers are caught in these shoal sounds, a veritable Gretna Green for their loves, but are to be found in salt waters, mainly male attendants, upon the sandy bottoms about the Virginia capes.

Weaning the Young.

After hatching, the myriads of young cling to the mother, and if she did not scrape them off by rubbing through the sands they would cause her death. This is the way she weans the young. These little fellows for the most part now strike out for shoal water to shed under protection, and it is in such vicinity they may stay for a whole season or until the mating period is passed. The female mates only when a "soft crab." Crabs shed earlier in the rivers and creeks of the bay than they do in the sounds.

When April dawns the shores of the estuaries of the Chesapeake are lined with men and boys, in skiffs, and plying hand-nets. At first many of the prizes are no bigger than your thumbnail, and are found hiding for protection under sticks, leaves and the like, at the water's edge. An expert crabber will discern the tiny eye protruding alert for danger, and with a dexterous dip of the net the baby crab is secured. The inexperienced eye could not have seen the mite even had it been unprotected by the leaf. As many as ten dozen of these have been packed for shipment in an ordinary cigar box, with dead and damp field grass of seas (sea grass), covering and below, the midgets bringing as much as $2.50 a dozen. A dozen would hardly make a good mouthful, but the epicures North must have the first, and we are very willing to supply their cravings—when the season is propitious.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN TO SPEAK IN INDIANA.

Bloomfield, Ind., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—At an all-day political rally to be held in this city by the Democrats of the Second district on Wednesday, October 9, William Jennings Bryan is to be the chief attraction, and it is confidently predicted by the local Democrats that the event will bring the largest crowd ever in Bloomfield. There will be special trains on all railroads, and prominent Democrats from all over the State will be present.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES

FILED AGAINST TWO PROMINENT REPUBLICANS.

Wallace Muir Goes After S. J. Roberts and Stanley Milward Because of Recent Publication.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—A sensation was caused here this afternoon when Wallace Muir, a prominent young lawyer of the Lexington bar and Democratic nominee for City Attorney, filed suits for damages against Sam J. Roberts, editor of the Lexington Leader, for $30,000, and Stanley Milward, a prominent business man, and son of Col. W. R. Milward, Republican nominee for Mayor, for $10,000. The suits, which are based on similar grounds, allege that on September 27, 1907, the Lexington Leader, in reporting a Republican meeting, published the following words which it alleged were used by Stanley Milward in a speech at the meeting of the night before concerning Mr. Muir:

"Referring to the incident in the C. and O. precinct, when Mr. Muir was an election officer and was in charge of the polls along with other election officers when the ballot box was stuffed with votes in the names of the late Gus Straus, W. R. Milward, Jr., and James Scott, Mr. Milward said in substance: 'Would you think it right if a set of scoundrals should steal your brother's vote as Wallace Muir and others did in the C. and O. precinct in 1903? The men who did this are thieves and ought to be in the penitentiary, where all election thieves belong.'"

The same statement is also used as a basis for the suit against Stanley Milward. The statements alleged to have been made by Stanley Milward, and published in the Leader, are alleged by the plaintiff to be utterly false and malicious.

Injunction Granted.

In the Circuit Court to-day Judge Parker issued a permanent injunction restraining the city authorities from selling for taxes a number of buildings in this city owned by the Christian Educational Society. This society is the business organization of the Bible College of Kentucky University, and the Court of Appeals recently decided that the property of the society was exempt from taxation on the grounds that the college was an educational and charitable institution. The action in the Circuit Court to-day was taken to complete the legality of the decision of the higher court.

"Business."

Monday Evening, Sept. 30.—After opening easier and moving within narrow limits during the greater part of the session the New York stock market developed firmness near the close and final prices were fractionally net higher. Canadian Pacific rallied 14 points on short covering.

Money on call was strong and higher at 5 to 6½ per cent., ruling at 6. Time loans were firm and quite at 6½ to 6 per cent. Sterling exchange was firm.

Profit taking by longs caused a weak wheat market in Chicago, the December delivery closing 1¼c lower. Corn was down ⅝c. Oats were ½c to ¾c lower.

The cotton market was irregular with alternating periods of strength and weakness. First prices were 1 to 8 points lower and final prices were practically unchanged from Saturday.

The Chicago cattle market was steady, the hog market 10c higher and the sheep market 10c lower.

Why Leave the Farm?

Gov. Hughes, of New York, in a recent number of Leslie's Weekly, makes an appeal for the farm as a "field of endeavor" for the young man, which should be considered not because there is anything of striking originality in it, but because it is made by a successful man who is an intelligent observer. Gov. Hughes reaches the conclusion that the young man "has a pretty good chance on the farm, and a greater degree of independence than he may reasonably hope to have in a city."

With the same amount of devotion to labor and the same amount of economy, and specialized knowledge that must be applied to the average business to make it successful, the business of farming may be made to pay a reasonable income and provide an ultimate competency. Of course, a young man cannot begin life as a land-owner in one of the older and more densely populated States unless he is fortunate enough to begin life with capital, but the chances are greatly against his being able successfully to enter business for himself in a city without considerably more capital than would be required to start as a farmer. And the farmer who begins as a tenant and buys his land after saving sufficient money to make the first payment has as good a chance to enjoy the comforts of life, and a few of the luxuries, as has the average salaried men in a city.

To a young man reared in the country a salary of $100 a month seems like comparative riches, or at least suggests reasonable independence, but what does it mean in a city? The man from the country who has been accustomed to three bountiful, well-cooked meals and a comfortable room will find that to procure anything approaching the same table fare and equally comfortable lodgings in a city of above 200,000 population will cost at least $10 a week. His car fare and laundry bills will account for $3 a week. Upon the remaining $12 he must be well-dressed seven days in the week, foot his incidental expenses, and pay for such of the pleasures of life as his tastes suggest. If he tries his fortune in one of the great American cities his expenses for the bare necessities are somewhat higher. If he is a gregarious animal, and most young men are, his sociable impulses are heavily taxed. To save anything out of a salary of $100 he must live in a boarding-house and spend few of his evenings out. If he elects to get married he and his wife are foredoomed to social obscurity and frugal living.

Farm life in Kentucky offers many advantages and few real hardships. Since the earliest settlement of the State rural Kentucky has boasted a social life unsurpassed in any community. It has frequently been compared to rural England. From one view-point at least it offers advantages over English country life. There are few titles above that of "Colonel," and, although there is an aristocracy of blood and breeding, there are no caste lines that form an insurmountable barrier to persons who are gentlemen and gentlewomen "by individual performance," to employ the phraseology of the turf.

There are, of course, many country-bred boys to whom country life is repugnant. They may perhaps find greater happiness in measuring dry goods or serving soda water than in farming. But the young man who wishes to succeed in life, to become a self-respecting and respected citizen of the community in which he elects to reside, to get the means to support a family, to enjoy a fair measure of independence and a fair share of leisure during his working years, and to provide with measurable certainty for resting upon the oars before he reaches fifty, should carefully consider his equipment, and the question of his probable earning capacity before he decides to invest his youth and energy, and his capital, if he has capital, in a city.

We are rich or poor only by comparison. The possession of a farm worth $25,000 or $50,000 makes a man moderately wealthy in Kentucky. An income of $25,000 or $50,000 does not make a man wealthy in New York.

"As Dry As Maine."

They are having a fight in Maine over the Prohibition law. Though it was iron-clad to begin with and has lasted sixty-five years, it has not only not prohibited the use and abuse of intoxicants, but has failed to diminish drunkenness. It has promoted smuggling. It has promoted extortion. It has promoted adulterations and evasions, hypocrisy and lying. The single thing which it has not done has been to make Maine "dry."

The Boston Herald has a letter from Bangor which throws some curious light upon "the way it works." Among many drastic measures of enforcement was a Smelling Committee—known as the Sturgis Commission—charged with the detective duty of running out the liquor-sellers and running in the liquor buyers. These detectives are dignified by the name of Deputies. They are easily seduced—in point of fact they are generally for sale—a place on the force being considered a lucrative job. We quote the following from the Boston Herald's correspondence:

"The Sturgis deputies, who have invested Bangor for nearly six weeks, are drawing back from the advanced lines they took at the beginning of the campaign. Those who claim to be familiar with the tactics of the leaders claim they are evacuating the city.

"The side doors to many of the barrooms, which have been secured with ponderous locks for several weeks, are open again and thirsty men stand about the bars and drink, while watchers stand at the street doors to give the alarm.

"There are fewer pocket peddlers than usual about the streets and in waiting rooms. There are a dozen places where draught ale is sold as openly as it was two years ago.

"Indications point to the fact that Bangor's involuntary and, at times annoying, drouth is drawing to a close. Soon the loaded carts will come in from the 'hides' and 'caches' out of the city, and Bangor will become the Bangor it was of old.

"Different reasons are assigned for the gradual relaxation of vigilance on the part of the deputies."

According to this letter in the Boston Herald the chief reason for the "let up" of the authorities in the matter of the rum-sellers was that "the Republican City Committee of Bangor has interceded with the State authorities as strongly and pointed out so forcibly that, if the present course of raiding were to continue the Republicans of the city and county would meet a hopeless defeat at the next election, that said authorities have tacitly consented to the withdrawal of most of the deputies."

Here we have an object lesson for those enthusiasts who propose to make Kentucky "as dry as Maine." After more than sixty-five years of drastic legislation—of legislation absolutely prohibitory—we read of "bar rooms" and "pocket peddlers" and "hides" and "caches," which the legalized Sturgis Smelling Committee either cannot, or will not, bring to the pains and penalties of the law.

The Herald's Correspondent closes his letter with the following illuminative morsel of local information.

"A close search all over Bangor Saturday morning revealed no more than five Sturgis deputies in the city. As there have been from eighteen to twenty-five of these officials in the city for a month past, the withdrawal of more than 75 per cent. is taken as a hopeful indication by the saloon men and their supporters.

"A leading citizen of Bangor, who saw Gov. Cobb last week, reports that his excellency remarked to him in a joking manner:

"'What is the trouble with you people in Penobscot county? By the way the complaints come in to me I am led to believe that more than half the Republicans in Bangor are in favor of free rum.'"

A Kansas Judge the other day described the drastic liquor law of that everblooming briar-patch of Christian statesmanship a la Dillworthy as "hostile and venomous to persons who do not agree with it." The Indianapolis Star, quoting this Kansas Judge, calls the movement started by the Anti-saloon League "an irrepressible conflict." Assuredly the Spirit of the Temperance Crusaders is proscriptive to the last degree while their activities are increasing. Says the Star:

"To-day the war is nominally on the saloon; but if so, it is only because the saloon seems to be the most vulnerable point of attack. Nobody need suppose that the enemies of the saloon would sit down glutted and appeased if every saloon in the land were to be annihilated. Next will come the brewery. Next the distillery. After a man has been stopped from drinking in a saloon, then he will be stopped from drinking at his club, then at his hotel, then at his home.

"It is not the idea at all that the saloon shall obey the law. It is that liquor shall cease to exist. Before public opinion has been brought up to the point of enforcing one law, another is pushed through the Legislature.

"There is no point in the local, State or National Government where the besiegers are not at the gates. If the President takes a drink, he hears from the enemies of the liquor traffic. The army and Congress are beleaguered with anti-canteen doctrine. Incessantly the propaganda assails Governors, Attorneys General, Legislatures. Men on the bench are expected, and some of them are eager, to take up the work of legislation where the Legislature leaves off. The executive officers of city governments, from Mayor down to patrolmen, Police Judges, members of the Council, Prosecuting Attorneys, are all the objects of anti-liquor agitation. The fight is directed all along the line, within the law, without the law, wherever an opening appears."

So it was and so it is in Maine; and yet, those who want drink are able to get it; in order to get it perjury and smuggling, with their attendant train of hypocrisy and pharisaism, are indispensable conditions; but, such as it is, they get it, adulterated and at extortionate prices. No people except the Mahomedans have ever been able to maintain a Prohibition law, and the Mahomedans supply the need for drink by death-dealing drugs.

The crazy people who are enlisted in the Crusade, like other fanatics, are possessed of a single idea, and that an illusion. They insisted upon abolishing the canteen in the army greatly to the hurt of the service and the soldier. They are insisting upon making the District of Columbia "dry," and when they have bullied Congress into passing a law to that effect, there will be just as much tippling as ever, nor any the less of drink, under sub rosa restrictions, that is hypocrisy and lying. Instead of paying taxes to the Government the dispensers of drink will take to successful smuggling.

The farmers of Kentucky complain of high taxes. Yet they are asked to take off two or three million from spirits to put it on themselves. And after they have done this, Kentucky will be only "as dry as Maine," which is not dry at all!

American Republics.

While the speech of Secretary Root at San Antonio will meet the views of many citizens of the United States, it is possible that it will not find full appreciation in the republics of Central and South America. It has long been known that many of the people of those republics do not regard with equanimity the remarks as to them which have been made by Mr. Roosevelt and members of his Cabinet.

Mr. Root's declaration that a nation has a right to exist only so long as it demonstrates its ability to look after the welfare of nations and the relations of man to man is not calculated to relieve the feeling of unrest that has already long existed in some of the smaller republics in the Western Hemisphere. Not that they would object so strenuously to the abstract truth of the assertion. They rather deprecate the idea that the United States Government seems to assume the right to judge for itself the right of other countries on this continent to exist. They insist that it is a matter of opinion whether a particular country can look after the welfare of nations and the relations of man to man in an adequate manner. They do not think that the United States Government, because it is great and strong, has any particular right to condemn those Governments as inadequate to discharge the functions which appertain to all. So far as their domestic affairs are concerned, they think that they afford a question for their own people. So far as their foreign relations go, they think that they are matters to be settled with any Government that has a cause of complaint against them, but that the United States has no right to lecture them about their controversies with others.

It is in this connection that the Monroe doctrine comes in. With reference to that the South American countries are not altogether consistent. When an emergency arises they are willing enough to get aid from the United States in the enforcement of the doctrine of Monroe, but at other times they are inclined to resent it as a claim of the United States to dictate what shall be done by and for the countries on this continent in their relations with European countries. Likewise they resent the intimation that they must "behave" themselves in order to be protected. Not that they insist on their right to misbehave in express terms. They rather resent the insinuation that they do misbehave and impugn our right to say so.

Mr. Root's declaration that the purpose of his visit to Mexico was to discuss with the Mexican Government affairs relating to the republics of South America is well calculated to make his mission of interest to those republics. It ought to be assumed that he will discuss these affairs in a spirit which respects the rights of every country, but it is by no means certain that all of the South American republics will be so sure of this. They suspect the United States, and especially the present Administration, of having designs of conquest, and this may tend to make them uneasy.

Vital Statistics.

Indiana has a new law, which goes into effect to-day, touching vital statistics, or, in other words, relating to the report of births, marriages, deaths and diseases which cause death. The fact that more law is deemed necessary to secure a correct report of such occurrences shows that former reports have been unsatisfactory.

The collection of vital statistics is in its infancy, so to speak, in this country. We have not had time to realize its importance as fully as they have done on the other side of the Atlantic. Their longer experience of the defects of human memory has led them to a dependence upon records which we have not yet fully appreciated. We are led to such appreciation in part by the example of the old country. Dr. Hurty, secretary of the Indiana Board of Health, cites the case of an Indiana man who lost a legacy of $12,000 because of the failure to furnish the desired proof of the relationship of the claimant with the person that died. This illustrates the need of better vital statistics in a way that appeals especially to the pocket-nerve, which is peculiarly sensitive among Americans as well as others.

In general, however, it may be said that if we are to have vital statistics at all, they ought to be correct. In order that they shall be accurate it is necessary that they be full. Imperfect statistics often lead to the most incorrect conclusions. We see this almost weekly in reports of births and deaths, in which the deaths frequently, perhaps generally, predominate. The conclusion from this may be, and must be, if the statistics are correct, that the population is falling off except as it may be helped out by immigration. If this is a fact, it is very serious, but few believe that it is true. The better explanation seems to be that the deaths are fully reported, while the births are reported only in part.

The reason for this difference in the reports is not far to seek. The deaths must be reported in order to get a burial permit. There is no such absolute necessity of reporting the births, and so many are not reported at all.

The physicians and midwives frequently neglect the duty of making these reports, and nobody is the wiser with reference to the births unreported. Nobody can say, no one can safely guess, how many births are left out. A recent prosecution brought out the fact that men required to make such reports did not regard it as imperative or important that they be made. The imposition of a fine upon one offender may have served as a warning to some others, but apparently not to all.

The new law in Indiana undertakes to impose severer penalties for failure to make proper reports. This is a common, but by no means always an effectual remedy. The old law was perhaps good enough if it had been enforced. Increasing the penalty for an offense which consists in mere negligence sometimes has the effect of making the new law harder to enforce than the old. This is especially the case with laws the need of which is not generally understood. Failure to comply with such a law is regarded as so trivial an offense that few people concern themselves with its execution, and such as may notice the omission are unwilling to see a heavy penalty inflicted on the offender.

Most of our laws are good enough if they are adequately enforced, though sometimes they need amendments. The Indiana law is made more stringent, and the time for reporting marriages, for example, is made shorter. This is a move in the right direction, for the giving of a long time to make these reports is a sure guaranty that many will not be made at all. The human memory is short, and to give a man three months, or six months, to report an event makes the impression that it is not important, while confining it to three days is calculated to make the contrary impression.

Meantime, it is necessary to bring the subject frequently to the minds of those who have duties to perform with reference to the collection of vital statistics. They must not only be reminded that the reports are needed, but that the law requires them. The infliction of the legal penalties for negligence in also sometimes necessary in order to remind the forgetful that they are neglecting an important duty which the law requires to be performed promptly.

KENTUCKY EDITORS ON THE STATE FAIR

[Milton News.]

The fair at Louisville last week was one of the best ever held in the State, and was more than a success in every particular. Thursday was Kentucky day, the crowd in attendance being 40,000. There were many thousands more people from the country in the city during the week than upon any former occasion, and the visitors were well cared for and highly entertained. Unquestionably Louisville is the proper location for the State Fair, and truly R. E. Hughes, secretary of the association, is the right man in the right place. The magnificent success this year is largely due to his untiring efforts.

[Anderson News.]

The State Fair at Louisville last week demonstrated one fact to our mind, and that is for a fair to prove a success it must rely for its support upon the country people.

We attended the fair on last Thursday, when it was estimated that 40,000 people passed through the gates. Out of this large attendance we are fully convinced that not less than two-thirds of those entering were from the rural districts. Why is this?

We believe, in fact, we know that the country people as a rule care little or nothing for a horse race, preferring, from the natural tendency of their environments and associations, to witness the exhibitions of those fine specimens of the serviceable species of the brute creation in whose improvement they are so vitally interested and in whose beauty of form and symmetry of action have for them an almost irresistible charm. Another thing, the average farmer is a practical being; he sees profit in handling a well-bred animal, such as a fine trotter, a sleek Jersey or a handsome Berkshire; but a horse race is a fleeting amusement to him, and he takes no interest in it. The race course seems cold and inhospitable to the average rural.e, whereas a fair is his ideal of good, wholesome and solid amusement, to say nothing of the advantages it affords him to glean information about agricultural matters in which he is so vitally interested. Here he can mingle and commingle with his neighbors and friends. He can bring his entire family and when dinner time comes they can all sit down and partake of an elegant luncheon already prepared beforehand by the good housewife. Here, too, he can invite his friends to join him and together they picnic and have the time of their lives. Another alluring feature of the fair to the average rustic is the various attractions offered on the "pike," the "stretch," the "midway," etc. Here he will give his last cent to see the latest curiosity, take a whirl on the "merry-go-round" or a trip on the Ferris wheel. The pink lemonade possesses a most seductive charm for him and the toy balloon man has long ago marked him as his own.

The average city man or woman cares little or nothing for the attractions offered by a fair. It is, in short, too tame and they think hum-drum, and they pass it by and leave it for their country cousins to enjoy, which they most assuredly do to the fullest measure.

[London Mountain Echo.]

The Kentucky State Fair is a future certainty for the old Commonwealth. The fair from every standpoint was a great success. The attendance for the week is estimated at from 150,000 to 200,000, every one of whom left declaring that it was the best State Fair they had ever attended. It was also a financial success and nearly $30,000 was cleared. The managers are entitled to the heartiest congratulations for bringing the fair to such a successful issue and insuring its continuance in the future. The management will at once set about securing a permanent location for the fair.

[Princeton Leader.]

All doubt of the State Fair being a success is now removed from the minds of the people of Kentucky. The immense crowds that attended the fair at Churchill Downs last week was a splendid indication that the establishment of a permanent State Fair at Louisville was no mistake.

Beginning Monday morning and closing Saturday night the fair was a great success, both from a financial and educational standpoint, to say nothing of the interesting amusement features which afforded much pleasure.

The live stock and farm products of the State, as well as the various industry displays, will prove a great advertisement for the State.

Great credit for the success of the fair is due the Hon. Hubert Vreeland, who, as Commissioner of Agriculture, Labor and Statistics, has been untiring in his efforts for the best interests of the fair.

[Henderson Journal.]

The State Fair has come and gone, a conspicuous and well-deserved success. To Secretary Hughes and to his indefatigable colleagues thanks are due from Pennyrile, Purchase and Bluegrass.

[Hopkinsville Kentuckian.]

The State Fair last week broke all records, and in spite of the troubles about securing a location, it was the best ever held in Kentucky.

[Elizabethtown News.]

Kentucky never had a fair that was so great a success from every standpoint as the State Fair in Louisville last week. The live stock was the very finest ever seen in a fair ring and the horticultural and agricultural departments were magnificent. It has been said that the Louisville people would not attend an agricultural fair, but this cannot be said any more, for the city turned out many thousands every day. The attendance, both from city and country, broke all records and will aggregate at least 200,000 for the six days. There was not only enough money taken in to pay all expenses, but a neat sum of clear profit. Much of the success of the fair was due to the untiring energy and splendid executive ability of Mr. R. E. Hughes, the secretary. Bob was right there with the goods all the time. The press of the State gave hearty support to the enterprise and the large attendance was principally due to the liberal advertising.

[Hart County News.]

Louisville certainly had the time of her life last week, with the splendid State Fair, the presence of Vice President Fairbanks, the conventions of the State Bankers, Postmasters of the Fourth Class and County Clerks. Henry Clews, the famous New York banker and financier, delivered an address to the bankers and First Assistant Postmaster General Hitchcock, Third Assistant Postmaster General Lawshe and Supt. Tillman, Chief of the Rural Delivery of the country, were all present and delivered addresses at the convention of the postmasters, this being the first time so many post-office officials ever left Washington to honor any meeting at any place at the same time. The State Fair enjoyed the rare good fortune of six consecutive fine days of weather which brought out a magnificent attendance, making it a great financial success. Louisville is our chief city, and all Kentuckians are proud of her and her successes.

[Williamstown Courier.]

The editor of the Courier attended the State Fair at Louisville "Kentucky Day," Thursday, September 19, and frankly confesses that he never saw such a crowd at any fair or affair in Kentucky. It was generally estimated at 50,000, the lowest being 40,000. It was a great day at the great fair.

* * *

[Boone County Recorder.]

The State Fair, which closed at Louisville last Saturday, was a grand success in every particular.

* * *

[Hartford Herald.]

The State Fair at Louisville last week was a great affair in every sense of the word. It was really bigger and better than the majority of the people anticipated and they gave vent to their appreciation in an enormous attendance. Hereafter the State Fair will be counted as something which no Kentuckian can afford to miss.

The editors of Kentucky who were so fortunate as to attend the State Fair at Louisville last week certainly "got theirs" in the portion of pleasure allotted to them. The fair management lost no trouble nor expense in seeing that the pencil pushers were royally entertained. It was a time and a favor that will be long remembered.

* * *

[Stanford Interior Journal.]

The State Fair at Louisville was a success from every point of view and no one is entitled to more credit for it than the clever and efficient secretary, Mr. R. E. Hughes. When "Bob" goes into a thing it is safe betting that it will come out at the big end of the horn.

* * *

[Harrodsburg Democrat.]

The State Fair was a hummer and Louisville took care of the big crowds in a way that was quite creditable.

Kentucky will have even a bigger and better State Fair next year.

* * *

[Hartford Republican.]

The State Fair at Louisville last week was a great success, both financially and as an attraction of the first magnitude. Mr. R. E. Hughes, the secretary, deserves special mention for his splendid efforts in behalf of the enterprise. He took the country press into his confidence to a greater extent than has ever been done before, and there is no doubt but what the large country attendance was due to the liberal advertising in the country papers.

* * *

[Jeffersonian.]

The Kentucky State Fair at Louisville last week was an unqualified success. The weather was perfect, the exhibits in every department were excellent, the details of the big undertaking worked out just as planned, and the attendance was greater than even the most sanguine expected. Every official and employe of the annual event performed his duty admirably, and the results must necessarily be good while the future could not be brighter.

Back of this outcome looms the genius and the personality of one man, a dynamic power that has proven irresistible—Robert E. Hughes, "red-headed child of destiny," a Moses in the wilderness, a man of strenuosity, outvaling Teddy Roosevelt, one of whom every man, woman and child in Kentucky should be proud, and one beloved by the newspaper fraternity of the State without any exception.

To him more than all else is the success of the State Fair for 1907 due, and all hats are doffed, all hands extended in hearty congratulations to this man who modestly and unassumingly does things—"our Bob."

SPEAKS A GOOD WORD FOR JUDGE W. H. HOLT.

[To the Editor of the Courier-Journal.]

Through your paper of a recent date, I noticed that the defendant in the case of the Commonwealth of Kentucky vs. Cale Powers, et al., proposed as special Judge to try this case the name of W. H. Holt, but the Commonwealth, through Attorney Franklin, its representative, objected from the fact that the Hon. A. J. Carroll (Holt's son-in-law), had been attorney for one of the conspirators in the same case.

While I am only an obscure citizen of the State, with a limited education, I feel that after having heard all the testimony in the Howard case at Frankfort and from this testimony I believe the whole gang from Taylor down to be guilty, being intimately acquainted with Judge Holt for more than thirty years, which is long enough to thoroughly sift one's character for ability, honesty, firmness and in egrity, I have that confidence in him that I firmly believe he would give Powers, or any of the accused, a fair and impartial trial; and I believe he would confie himself strictly to the law in his rulings and instructions to the jury in trying this or any other case.

I have been a voter in this State for more than fifty years; served as an officer in the Confederate army; am a Democrat; will support the full Democratic State ticket; was for McCreary for United States Senate, yet with this personal record I do not think justice would be misrepresented through Judge Holt, nor do I think he ought to be disqualified (in the opinion of him, Franklin and associates) from the fact that his son-in-law was an attorney and took, likely, a good fee for defending one of the accused. Respectfully, a subscriber,

J. S. PITMAN.

ORIGINS OF CUSTOMS.

[Home Notes.]

Many customs are so common that we have lost sight of the origin. Times and habits have changed. Relics of olden days have been handed on and carried down from generation to generation to our present day.

Shaking hands is an example, and began in this way: When adversaries were making a truce with one another, each found it wiser to grasp the other's weapon hand to insure himself against treachery. The truce concluded, they became friends, and so the custom grew as a salutation between friends; even nowadays enemies do not shake hands till peace—a truce—is made.

Perhaps the modern woman discovered the origin of the curtsey, and that is why it has dropped out of use. At one time it was the custom for women to go on the knees to men of rank to beg for mercy; and later it became an acknowledgment of superiority. That is why it is still retained where royalty is concerned; but the example of the old country woman, who still "bobs" to the squire's lady, is not followed by the younger generation, and the pretty curtsey that was the fashion when our grandmothers held sway is now forsaken and almost obsolete.

A man when greeting a lady raises his hat. Why does his salutation take this form?

In the days when armor was more fashionable than silk hats or panamas, the helmet was only raised when no danger was near, so to lift the hat was a sign that the wearer dared to stand in the presence of the person so greeted unarmed.

What of the oldest of old customs—the kiss?

To kiss is to adore, and the word adore signifies simply to carry the hand to the mouth. Kissing the hand to the statue of a god was a Roman form of adoration, and as a mode of salutation expressed reverence and worship. To kiss the book when taking an oath is a public acknowledgment that you adore the deity whose book you kiss. To kiss the lips is to adore the living breath of the person saluted. In Scripture allusion is made to kissing the hem of garments, which signified an adoration of anything belonging to or touching the wearer; while kissing the feet or ground was to humble oneself in adoration.

AN ANTI-TREAT CLUB.

[Washington, D. C. Post.]

It is related that one night at White's, or Brooks', in London, in the latter part of the Eighteenth century, a callow lordling approached the aged Duke of Queensberry and whispered: "I have found Sandwich cheating at ecarte; what shall I do about it?" "Do! Do!" exclaimed the old reprobate. "Why, back him, you blanked fool!"

This temperance craze that is running up and down the country, and that threatens to make the Capital of the United States a dry town ere the death of the Sixtieth Congress, has the backing of any number of statesmen who no more believe in it than an honest man believes in cheating at cards. Henry Watterson is making resolute and zealous resistance to it, but he is as powerless before its inroad as Mrs. Partington was in her trial of might against the Atlantic ocean, and even the valiant colonel has come to see that Kentucky, to employ his own words, "is as dry as hell and Maine."

Col. Watterson makes a plea for temperance that bears all the prohibition fanaticism of all the temperance cranks. Though he lives in a State where more fine table whisky is made than is produced in the rest of the Union, the colonel suggests that the best temperance movement would be to educate the public palate to wine and beer, and thus decrease the consumption of whisky and brandy. He quotes Jefferson as saying that no people was ever drunken among whom wine was pure and cheap.

The editor of the Courier-Journal might have suggested yet another palliative of intemperance in the anti-treating club, and if the Legislature must meddle with things that do not concern it, why not enact a law that would make it a misdemeanor to "treat" or offer to treat?

WHO CAN WIN?

[Chicago News.]

In the American Magazine for October Henry Watterson is quoted as favoring the nomination of Gov. Johnson, of Minnesota, as the Democratic candidate for President next year. He says, however, that he does not aspire to be a Warwick, but that Mr. Bryan ought to play the part by throwing his support to Johnson.

The New York Times calls attention to the fact that a large number of the leading newspapers of the South are opposed to the nomination of Bryan. Still, his nomination seems probable, unless the indefatigable Mr. Hearst arranges a combination by which to gain the coveted honor. But the complaint made by Col. Watterson, that radical Democrat and conservative Democrat eat each other up so long as the Bryans and the Parkers are the party's standard bearers, would apply with added emphasis to a Hearst running for the presidency. The veteran Kentucky Democrat may be right in saying that Gov. Johnson's discovery and nomination by Mr. Bryan would be beneficial to the long disrupted party.

There seems to be little robust life in the Bryan movement at the present time. It has gone stale. The remarkable elements of strength possessed by Gov. Johnson in the Northwest and the fact that no wolves of faction are howling on his track suffice to render him attractive in the eyes of the none too hopeful Democracy.

MRS. WU WELCOME.

[Washington Times.]

The appointment of the former Minister from China, Wu Ting Fang, as Minister at his post again, will bring back to Washington one of the most picturesque, progressive and interesting figures in Washington diplomatic society. Little Mme. Wu Ting Fang, who left a large acquaintance and many friends behind her when she bid farewell here, several years ago. She was one of the very few women from the Orient who had any chance to see Washington society, all former representatives of those lands either leaving their wives at home, or following the usual custom prevailing in their own country, of keeping the women in close seclusion.

Mme. Wu, however, made visits with her husband, and went about freely, to the theaters and to receptions. She held her own receptions every week, and made many friends by her simplicity, quaintness and unconcealed desire to become familiar with American customs. She greatly admired American women and their clothes, but never deviated a hair's breadth from the manner of dressing in the Flowery Kingdom. Her return to Washington to preside over the new Chinese legation will be hailed with delight. During Minister Wu's regime here the legation was located in the handsome stone mansion of T. Frank Schneider, corner of Eighteenth and Q streets, recently occupied by former Senator Dryden, of New Jersey.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

LOUISVILLE has evidently reversed its decision as to the talents of Louis Mann as an entertainer. Some two years ago Mr. Mann played to a handful of people at Macauley's in "The Second Fiddle," which was one of the most diverting little comedies recently presented on the local stage. Those who went chuckled, but it must have been discouraging to the company to play to so many empty seats. Last night Mr. Mann appeared in the opening local performance of "A White Hen" and the house was packed from "pit to dome," as the stereotyped phrase goes. The audience liked the piece, although it was not nearly so good a vehicle for the display of Louis Mann's talents as the 'still" comedy that was given a cold shoulder.

"The White Hen" is a musical comedy, parted in the middle, the book by Frederic C. Penfield and the lyrics by Penfield and Paul West. Mr. Penfield will be remembered in Louisville as having put his shoulder to the wheel with John Kendrick Bangs to grind out "Lady Teazle," in which Lillian Russell made quit a hit several seasons ago. In "Lady Teazle" Mr. Bangs and Mr. Penfield worked upon some good material, but "The White Hen" was created whole. It gives Mr. Mann ample opportunities to occupy the center of the stage and in his broken English as Renate Blindner, the proprietor of a hotel in the Austrian Tyrol, he manages to extract laughter from his audience, but his work in the first act especially is too nearly a monologue to meet with all the requirements.

The story of "A White Hen" has to do with the matrimonial ventures and adventures of the proprietor of the White Hen. It proceeds ludicrously and ends happily, as is the rule in musical comedy. There are a number of rather catchy songs, among them "Keep Cool," "Follow Follow" and "Fishing" in the first act and "The Thrush and the Star," "That's Why the Danube is Blue," and "At Last We Are Alone," in the last act.

Carolyn Heustis, who plays opposite Mr. Mann as Lisa, secretary to Attorney Weiss, is a buxom, rather good-looking young woman, whose work has the merit of sincerity and whose singing is quite acceptable. Laura Jaffray as Pepi, William Armstrong as Weiss and a number of other comedienes and comedians contribute to the gaiety.

"The White Hen" could not be called an ambitious bit of work upon the part of the writer of the book, nor is it as good a vehicle as so capable an actor as Louis Mann should be provided with, but with a large number of chorus girls in rather pretty costumes and a great deal of very broad humor, sometimes running a little to coarseness, it is the sore of musical hodge-podge that makes good with large audiences, and last night's audience was tickled repeatedly and satisfactorily.

The engagement is for this evening and to-morrow afternoon and evening.

At the Mary Anderson.

Corinne Sales, a native of Louisville, appeared for the first time at the Mary Anderson yesterday and made friends with her audience immediately. Miss Sales sings and dances opposite Francis Dooley. The two are "assisted" by Queenie Laurens, whose assistance consists in doing exceptionally good dancing. Miss Sales has a valuable asset in a type of beauty much admired upon the stage and well adapted to being costumed with chic abbreviation. She is youthful and vivacious and does her work well.

George W. Monroe, whose Aunt Bridget has been with us for sometime and has probably earned the distinction of being a vaudeville casste, is on the programme.

The bill is parted in the middle by Lee Harrison and his "Broadway Girls," who present a tabloid musical comedy called "A Morning Rehearsal," in which the difficulties met with by a young man training a bevy of chorus girls to kick for the audience and not at the management are exploited. There are a half dozen girls and they are quite up to the average in point of pulchritude. The costumes are bright and attractive, and there is dancing and singing of the usual musical comedy sort.

Mlle. Emmy's trained dogs form a feature of the bill especially attractive to the juvenile portion of the audience. Julian Rose caracatures the Jew in his monologue "Lavinsky at the Wedding" and Ralph Johnstone, "The Beau Brummel of the Wheel," does good stunts on a bicycle.

At the Masonic.

Dorothy Vernon of Hadden Hall came to the Masonic last evening for a visit of a week and the audience which greeted this romantic melodrama of teh days of Queen Elizabeth was both attentive and pleased.

The dramatization by Paul Kester, of Charles Major's romance, is not at all new to the theater-goers of Louisville, for they have seen both Bertha Galland and Alberta Gallatin in the role of Dorothy and remember how Sir John Manners, a young soldier of a hated enemy of the Vernons, comes to Hadden Hall and is taken for Dorothy's cousin, Sir Malcolm Vernon, who is expected to arrive. Dorothy falls in love with Manners against her father's will, defying him and all the rest of the family, together with Queen Elizabeth, who has just arrived as a guest to the Hall. Of how Dorothy makes her father's life very miserable for him, scores the love of her cousin, Malcolm, who wishes to marry her and succeeds in making her lover betray the hiding place of his Queen, Mary of Scotland, only as the ringing save the young man's life as he is in danger of losing his head for stealing into her apartments, like Mary Tudor in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," the headstrong lady has most everybody in who comes within her range of wrath dancing to the tune she plays and in the end wins her way to the satisfaction of everyone.

The present production is ideal in point of scenic beauty and costuming, and the cast capable.

To the star, Blanca West, who plays Dorothy, only praise can be given for a very correct rendition of a difficult part. Miss West is young, bright and pretty and though she talks a little too fast, her voice is very pleasing to hear. The John Manners of Joseph Golow is handsome, manly and graceful and a typical Elizabethan lover. Joseph E. Mac Gregor is happily cast as Sir George Vernon and Alfred James as Perkins is especially deserving of mention.

Miss West will be seen in "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon

NERVE STRAINS HIS VITALITY

Brakeman Succumbs After Heroic Fight For Life.

Six Ribs Broken, Leg Cut Off, Head Crushed,

Yet Mahaffey Binds His Wounds Himself.

DEATH ENDS HIS SUFFERING.

With his right leg cut off below the knee, half a dozen ribs broken and his head crushed, Carl Mahaffey was found by a search party sitting beside the Southern railway track at the Edwardsville tunnel, binding up his wounds with bandages made from his underclothing. He was a brakeman, and such an exhibition of nerve the railroad men say they never saw before. Human endurance could not withstand the shock from all the injuries, however, and Mahaffey died at noon yesterday, after he had been brought to the St. Edward's City Hospital in New Albany.

Mahaffey was a freight brakeman, employed on the Southern railway, and fell between two cars at the Edwardsville tunnel, five miles west of New Albany, yesterday morning about 4:30 o'clock. He was on the east-bound freight train and had started to walk over it to set the brakes when he fell between the cars under the trucks. He was not missed until the train reached the yards, when the engine was cut off and ran back in search of him.

When the train crew reached the place wher he fell, he was found sitting beside the track and was engaged with rare nerve in an attempt to stop the flow of blood. He had torn his underclothing to fragments and was using the pieces to bind up the wounds. He was brought to St. Edward's City Hospital, New Albany, where the company's surgeon, Dr. Charles P. Cook, looked after his hurts. From the first it was known that he could not survive, and he passed away as the clock struck 12.

His right leg was severed between the knee and ankle, a half dozen ribs were broken and his head was badly crushed.

Mahaffey was twenty-two years old and had been employed as a brakeman on the Southern for several years. His father, L. D. Mahaffey, for many years a passenger engineer on the Southern, is now in Mexico running an engine on the Mexican Southern. He was a nephew of Robert L. Mahaffey, 1843 East Oak street, an engineer in the service of the Southern.

Motor League Representatives.

Dr. Charles P. Cook, John S. McDonald and O. O. Thompson are the representatives of the New Albany district of the Indiana division of the American Motor League. The Indiana division, composed of ninety-two counties, has been divided into fifteen districts, each of which will be entitled to a number of representatives, proportionate to the list of league members enrolled in the district.

The league is opposed to road racing, and to the speeding of motor cars on the public highways. Its energies will be directed toward securing better laws, better roads and better treatment for owners of automobiles, who now suffer for the misconduct of a few reckless offenders. The Indiana division will have twenty delegates to the first national assembly of the American Motor League, at its next annual meeting. The State Board of Directors now contains seventy members, and additions will be made to the membership in a few days.

Says Daughter Has Eloped.

Will F. Ruoff, Clerk of Floyd county at New Albany, received yesterday from William Hyslope, of Valleene, Orange county, a letter asking for information concerning his daughter, Miss Sophia Hyslope. The letter recited that the girl, who is but fifteen years old, had eloped the night of September 25. No thing had been heard of her since, and the anxious father desired to know if she had been granted a marriage license, and he asked the County Clerk to refuse the document, if she applied for one, and have her arrested. Mr. Ruoff made an examination of the marriage license record and found that no license had been issued.

Thirty Saloon Men Plead Not Guilty.

The thirty saloonkeepers of New Albany who were charged with violation of the liquor laws appeared in the City Court yesterday morning and entered pleas of not guilty. The cases were set for trial next Thursday, and will occupy the greater part of two days, should they be tried. No action was taken in the case against Theodore Endris, proprietor of the Green Tree House, who was arrested Sunday on a charge of violating the Nicholson law, and it will be called in the City Court later in the week.

HENRY CHARGED WITH FALSE SWEARING

WARRANT FOLLOWS DISMISSAL OF JAMES HOLT.

NO CONNECTION WITH ETLY MURDER CASE SHOWN.

DETECTIVE UNDER ARREST.

After the dismissal yesterday of James Holt, who was charged by Private Detective C. W. Henry with the murder of Mrs. Virginia Etley, Holt turned the tables on Henry when his attorney took out a warrant against Henry on the charge of false swearing. The warrant was issued immediately after the case against Holt was dismissed by Judge Blain, and Henry, who was soon arrested, was taken to the county jail.

When Holt was presented yesterday morning it made the second time he had appeared in the Police Court on the charge of murdering Mrs. Etly on the night of November 8, 1906. No new evidence on the side of the prosecution was presented, and it was clearly established to the mind of the court from the testimony of witnesses that Holt was not at the time in the vicinity of the place where Mrs. Etly was murdered.

The recent warrant against Holt was taken out by C. W. Henry, a private detective, who ever since the time of the first case, when Holt was dismissed of the charge, it is said, has continued in this effort to lay grounds for evidence to show that Holt was really responsible for the murder. After a continued investigation of several weeks it was at his instigation that a warrant for Holt was sworn out more than a week ago.

The warrant for the arrest of Private Detective Henry was taken out at the instance of Delos B. Rogers, attorney for Holt. The affidavit was made by Patrolmen Cooper and O'Mara, before Henry had left the City Hall, and he was taken first to the Central Police station. Being unable to give bond he was remanded to the county jail. In the warrant for the arrest of Henry, Holt alleges that the swore falsely against him, the ground for which is based on the allegation that he never met Henry at the corner of Fourth avenue and K street on the night of the murder of Mrs. Etly.

Henry stated in court that the warrant for the arrest of Holt had not been sworn out at the instigation of C. W. Huggins, attorney for Etly.

VISIT OUT

Jeffersonville Methodists Get Dr. Ward Again.

FEARED HE WOULD BE SENT TO CONNERSVILLE.

NO CLEAR WATER, NO PAY FOR SERVICE.

FIGHT ON IN CLARK COUNTY.

The congregation of Wall-street Methodist Episcopal church, Jeffersonville, was jubilant yesterday over a telegram received by A. A. Swartz from Columbus, Ind., announcing that the annual conference, which ends to-day, had decided to return the Rev. J. S. Ward to his present charge to begin on his third year as pastor. There was such a fight made by the Connersville church for Mr. Ward's services that it was feared he would be sent there, an inducement in the way of a salary of $2,000 having been offered him, in addition to which he was to have the use of the handsome parsonage. The Jeffersonville church, which has been giving Mr. Ward $1,200 per year and house rent, raised the amount to $1,600, but it was feared this would not keep him from being sent to Connersville.

Yesterday a committee consisting of Prof. C. M. Marble and H. M. Frank left Jeffersonville for Columbus, and on the arrival of the two they went at once to Bishop Warren and laid their case before him. He listened to their appeals and finally said he would send Mr. Ward back, provided he desired to go. This was satisfactory to him, although he will not receive as much pay by $400, but it is not unlikely this will be made up to him in some way, and he will return this evening to resume his residence in Jeffersonville, where he has become popular with the people both in and out of his church.

It was the understanding last night that the Rev. Edward F. Schneider, who has been pastor of the German Methodist Episcopal church in Jeffersonville, but left the Central Conference to look for an English-speaking congregation, will be sent to Sellersburg to succeed the Rev. A. R. Kemp, who was formerly at Charlestown. Mr. Schneider is a minister of fine attainments, and his rapid rise is expected. The Rev. Charles Linsley, who was formerly pastor at Wall street, has been superannuated.

Trying To Force Clear Water.

A pretty little game of "freeze-out" is being played in Jeffersonville by the city administration, the Indiana Reformatory and the town of Port Fulton, on one side, and the Jeffersonville Water Supply Company on the other. The point sought to be gained in the play is pure water, and as an inducement to force the water company to acknowledge it is beaten and to submit to the will of the people, its money is being held back by the corporations fighting it. The company claims it is willing to give the people what they ask, but the money to make the improvements is lacking.

With the beginning of to-day the end of several months in the fight has been reached, but no money is in sight. The money appropriated by the Jeffersonville City Council to pay the water rent is being kept in a fund for that purpose and none of it has been touched. The same can be said of the Indiana Reformatory and the town of Port Fulton. The water company's Constantated recently that it can furnish pure water, but did not go far enough to supply the entire city. Several wells were sunk near the Government Depot and the purest of water was found, but it was not long until it was shown that the pumping machinery was not sufficient to supply the whole city, especially when a great deal of water is used for sprinkling.

To increase the supply the old plant in Port Fulton, which pumps direct from the river, was started again, and at times part of the city has water as clear as crystal, while in some localities it is about half water and the other half mud. The city is satisfied that if more machinery is added there will be no further trouble from the water question.

Detroit 9, Philadelphia 9.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—In one of the greatest baseball games ever seen in this city, Detroit and Philadelphia, who are making a sensational fight for the American League championship, to-day played each other to a standstill. The game went seventeen innings and was called because it was too dark to play longer.

Both teams were worked up to a high pitch and going strong, and neither side wanted to quit, although the street lamps surrounding the grounds had already been lighted. There being no winner, the positions of the teams remain the same, Detroit having a lead of seven points.

Each team has seven games on its schedule before the season ends. Had it not been for the fact that two games were to have been played, necessitating an early start, the game would not have gone seventeen innings.

It was a remarkable contest in many ways and the crowd that saw it was probably the largest that ever gathered in a ball grounds in this city. It is estimated that fully 40,000 persons were packed in and outside the grounds. The official paid attendance was 24,127, but several thousand more persons gained admission on passes or otherwise.

Rossman Almost Caused Riot.

The gates to the grandstand were closed before 1 o'clock and the crowd became so great that the police for a time lost control and hundreds gained admittance over the fence. The roofs of surrounding houses were crowded to the danger point, the thrifty householders charging from twenty-five cents to $1 for standing room on their roofs.

The multitude within the inclosure was well controlled except in the fourteenth inning, when First Baseman Rossman, of Detroit, nearly caused a riot.

In this inning Davis hit to center field, Crawford dropping the ball on the edge of the crowd. Crawford claimed he was interfered with, and the whole Detroit team came in to back up Crawford's claim. In the confusion that followed, Rossman struck Monte Cross, who was coaching. Cross went at Rossman, but the other players interfered and stopped hostilities.

The crowd surged on the field and for a few minutes matters looked dangerous, but the excellent work of the police prevented further disorder, and the crowd fell back. Davis was declared out and Rossman was put out of the game. Killian took his place.

Honors Belong To Donovan.

The honors of the game undoubtedly belong to Donovan, who, after being hammered for fourteen hits in seven innings, pulled himself together and the more he pitched the better he seemed to get. In the last ten innings he held the home team to six hits. He only gave three bases on balls in the seventeen innings.

Dygert lasted only a little more than one inning when he was relieved by the famous Waddell. The latter pitched remarkable ball for three innings, striking out six of the first eight men that faced him. The crowd went wild over his performance, but he later weakened and was replaced by Plank in the ninth inning after Cobb had hit him for a home run, tieing the score. Plank pitched his usual steady game and was seldom in trouble.

Philadelphia looked an easy winner up to the seventh inning, when they had a lead of 7 to 1. In the seventh Philadelphia made one, bringing the score to 8. Detroit made four runs on poor fielding, added one in the eighth and tied it up in the ninth. Both teams scored in the eleventh and from then to the finish neither side could get the extra tally. Each side was dangerous at times, but Donovan and Plank were steady as clocks.

Brilliant plays marked many of the innings, the fielding honors going to Nicholls, who scooped up grounders on the run and shot them to first in brilliant style.

The Game In Detail.

Detroit was easily disposed of in the first inning, but the home team gave Donovan much trouble. Hartsel singled, stole second and Nicholls sacrificed him on third. Seybold was given four balls. Davis' drive was too hot for O'Leary and Hartsel trotted home, Seybold taking second. Murphy filled the bases with a single and a moment later Seybold scored on Collins' fly to Jones. Oldring sent Davis home with the third run on a two-base hit into the crowd.

Detroit got its first run in the second. Rossman singled and Dygert made a bad throw of Coughlin's grounder. Schmidt sacrificed. O'Leary hit to Dygert, who threw to Schreck to catch Rossman, but the big backstop dropped the ball and Rossman was safe.

Dygert was then relieved by Waddell, who electrified the crowd by striking out both Jones and Schaefer. Doubles by Seybold and Davis, a single by Murphy and Oldring's force gave Philadelphia two runs in the third and two more were made in the fifth on a home run by Davis and two-base hits by Collins and Oldring.

Athletics Go To Pieces.

The home team momentarily went to pieces in the seventh. Oldring muffed Donovan's easy fly. Jones received a base on balls and Nicholls allowed the bases to be filled by fumbling Schaefer's grounder. Crawford then came to time with a double into the crowd, sending Donovan and Jones across the plate. Cobb's easy out scored Schaefer, and Crawford came home with the fourth run of the inning on Rossman's out. In Philadelphia's half Murphy scored a run for the home team on his own single, Collins' sacrifice, Oldring's single and Schreck's force.

In the eighth Detroit added one to its count on O'Leary's two-base hit and steal of third and Jones' single.

The ninth opened with Detroit two runs behind and defeat staring them in the face. Crawford opened with a single and then Cobb put the ball out of the grounds, tieing the score. Plank relieved Waddell and the inning ended without further scoring. The Philadelphians were easy outs in the ninth.

Cobb's double and Rossman's single gave Detroit its ninth and last run in the eleventh. Philadelphia tied it up in the same inning on a double by Nicholls, a wild pitch and a long fly by Davis. The score:

Boston 3, Chicago 3.

Boston, Sept. 30.—After losing fourteen straight games, Boston held Chicago to a tie game to-day, 3 to 3. Fourteen innings were played, darkness putting an end to the contest. Barry, late of Providence, was taken out of the box in the ninth when he showed signs of weakening. Burchell, from Baltimore, was substituted. He was lacking in control, but the champions could not hit him. Altrock pitched a steady game except in the eighth, when the home team saved itself from defeat by bunching hits. Score:

CHAT OF THE GAME.

Pitcher Pittinger, who is ill, will pitch no more for the Phillies this season, and probably never again. He is at his home in Carlisle.

The White Sox will go barnstorming at the close of the season.

Davy Jones, of the Tigers, is nearing the century mark in runs scored.

Detroit has the champion trio of rungetters in Jones, Cobb and Crawford.

Perrine is to go to Louisville next season and Brashear will go to Kansas City.

Frank Selee represented Pueblo at the recent meeting of the Western League in Chicago.

Toledo drew best in the American Association, Columbus second and Indianapolis third.

They have begun to build circus seats on the Detroit grounds in anticipation of a throng at the world's series.

Ed Walsh likes to work in chilly weather, and has lots more life in him since the wind has shifted to the northward.

Eddie Plank has his terrible left-handed cross-fire delivery under great control, and is fooling both right and left-handed batters.

The Toronto team has but three old players on it in reality, Joe Kelley, Billy Phyle and Schlafly. The others are all young hustlers.

Yes, it has been a bad year for baseball. Even the American Association feels it. The report of the treasurer shows a balance of $265,000.

Jack Bell, Griff's new outfielder, is said to be playing under a stage name, his real title being Baerwold. The fans are glad he changed it.

The speed of the Phillies' infield, especially at the middle sack, is attested by the fact that they lead the National League in double plays.

Orvie Overall will be the Cubs' mainstay in the pitching department of the world's series against whichever of the clubs win the American League pennant.

If Joss and Berger and a few more of their pals work against the Athletics as well as they did against the Yankees ther are breakers ahead for Mack's men.

Umpire Klem chased no less than eight Giants off the grounds during the three games at Pittsburg. He says he learned that they were going after him and proceeded to spoil their little game.

It looks as if Washington had secured a second George Stone in Outfielder Milan.

President John I. Taylor makes this announcement: "The Boston American League club will try out its youngsters against the leaders, using all alike, and forcing all to play their best ball."

Matthewson shows flashes of his old form more and more frequently as the season closes and it is quite on the cards that the big twirler may be better next season that at any time since the championship series in 1905.

The list of favorites for the all-American baseball aggregation is already at the zenith of its possibilities, but it has remained for St. Louis to furnish the entries for the Grand All-Lemon Sweepstakes.—Pittsburg Sun.

Bob Unglaub, of the Pilgrims, evidently didn't feel hurt at being relieved of the managership of the club. He has kept up his good work with the stick right along and has a record of 116 hits in 117 games, which isn't bad.

Manager Hugh Duffy, of Providence, says he had no less than thirty-two varieties of "winders" this season, and next year he will fight shy of alleged "phenoms" and "comers" who have no license to play on class A teams.

A Detroit paper runs a picture of Tommy Burns shaking hands with Hughey Jennings, "the near-champions who put Detroit on the map." The Tigers are a good deal more champions now than Burns ever has been or ever will be.

Those Phillies will be a harder team to lick next year than they have been this year, according to the opinions of players and fans. Manager Murray has picked up a good pitcher in McQuillan if the early dope on him is worth anything.

Harry Niles has fallen off badly in his hitting, while George Stone has improved his average wonderfully.

Blair, the new Yankee catcher from the Tristate, has a great arm. He stopped six Naps stealing in a recent game.

It is feared that Otto Hess will have a weak ankle for life because of his recent pop-bottle injury.

Ty Cobb continues to play, although he has a hand that would cause most players to do bench duty.

Rumor has it that Elberfeld will play short and captain Washington next year.

Clarke Griffith wants Hemphill and McAleer would like Conroy. A trade is possible.

Bonesetter Reese, of Youngstown, has been of great service to the American League Pitchers Jacobson, Tannehill and Hughes, also Outfielder Hoy, have been successfully treated.

Boston and Washington have over 125 men under contract. It will be back to the minors for many.

Willie Keeler will hit under .300 this year for the first time in his career. It's been a bad year for Willie.

Heinie Berger ought to be a star performer next year. Heinie has arrived late, but in good style.

Cleveland has had twenty players on the sick or injured list during the season.

It looks as if McAleer had picked up two good men in Pitchers Bailey and Keith, of the Texas League.

In a recent game with New York Topsy Hartsel made three singles, a double and a triple in as many times at bat.

Two of the Atlanta pitchers, Zellers and Castleton, will be members of Clarke Griffith's team next season.

Just when Isbell re-entered the game Tannehill injured his arm and was forced to retire.

Jimmy Dygert, the only spit-ball pitcher on Connie Mack's staff, has been doing great work of late.

The Chicago Cubs are now taking it easy preparing for the world's championship series.

Pitcher Johnson, the Idaho phenom, continues to do great work for Washington. He has lost a number of tough games.

Laporte has shown up so well in the outfield that he will probably be used as a regular by Griffith next season.

Pittsburg writers insist Tommy Leach is the fastest player in the business on a straightaway. American leaguers think Harry Niles the fastest.

Toronto Beats Columbus Again.

Columbus, O., Sept. 30.—Toronto to-day won the fourth game of the series with Columbus for the Class A minor league championship. McGinley pitched a fine game and was given faultless support. The visitors bunched hits in the third and eighth innings. Toronto has won three games and Columbus one of the series. The score:

Shelby Team Beats Indians.

Shelbyville, Ky., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—The Shelby baseball club took the Nebraska Indian team into camp here this afternoon by the score of 12 to 3. Howard Gwyn, of Lexington, who has signed with the Boston American League team for next season, pitched superb ball for the Shelbys and had the redskins at his mercy during the entire game. The Indians came here fresh from two victories in Louisville and were much chagrined over their defeat. The Shelbys claim the amateur championship of Kentucky, having lost but two games on the home grounds this season.

ONLY A HANDFUL

Hearst Leaguers Still Keep Working, However.

DECISION THAT ORGANIZATION SHALL BECOME NATIONAL.

NO DOUBT BUT THAT HE WILL CUT INTO RADICAL WING.

WANT CORPORAL PUNISHMENT

New York, Sept. 30.—[Special.]—The Independence League as a National organization, is still in the skeleton stage. While many States beyond New York were represented at its conference here, the only ones where the League has a real organization are New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Iowa and Illinois. Most of the delegates from other States only represented a handful of Leagues and several of them probably none at all. But such a situation is not at all discouraging to Mr. Hearst and his followers.

They built up an organization in all the counties in this State from a similar skeleton body and believe they can do the same in the country. There is no doubt that agents from the Gilsey House will soon be in every State of the Union organizing branches of the League and also that the Hearst papers will no doubt be circulating there. The Hearst forces believe that the rest will prove easy and that the Independence League will enter the next National campaign as effective, in fact twice as much as the People's Party was in the campaign of 1892.

* * *

National In Scope.

The decision of the conference that the League should become National in scope created no great surprise in political circles. That such has been its intention for nearly a year was well known and has been frequently written about in this paper. The decision of the conference was therefore a mere official notification of a fact well-known. Now the question is what effect it will have on the result in 1908.

No one, of course, believes that as a third party, The Independence League stands any chance of success. Mr. Hearst outside of his editorial columns, does not think so. But that the organization is going to poll a heavy vote if the same campaign methods of 1905 and 1906 are tried goes without saying. Many believe that there is a demand for a new party and Hearst is catering to it. When he ran for Governor last fall, the statement was made by several well-informed leaders that if he had not taken the Democratic indorsement but would have gone it alone, he might have stood a better chance of election.

Reckoned On Dissatisfaction.

They reasoned this way: That he would have held the League vote, which up the State is supplied by many Republicans, and would have then gotten votes both from Democrats and Republicans outside of the League who were dissatisfied with their parties. The important question is whether in the nation as well as in New York State the Independence League will depend for strength upon Republican as well as Democratic territory. If such be the case, and the fact should not be forgotten that last fall Hearst made a better run in Republican than in Democratic districts, the situation is serious for the men who will manage the canvass of Secretary Taft, or whomsoever the g. o. p. candidate may be.

There is no doubt also that so far as the Democrats are concerned, Mr. Hearst will cut heavily into the radical wing on which Mr. Bryan relies for support. With defection on this score and the conservatives lukewarm in their support, the Nebraskan will not enter the next campaign under very pleasant conditions. Few here take seriously the refusal of Hearst to become the candidate of the League for the Presidency next year.

He is too good a politician to finance and create an organization, and then officially declare that he is quite willing to accept preferment at its hands. But those who watch things will see that none but Hearst men will be put on guard at the National Convention of the League, and after some by-play, and possibly balloting, the nominee for President will be William R. Hearst.

* * *

Logical Candidate.

He is, of course, the only logical candidate of the new party. Much interest is being aroused here over what has become of the deal between Hearst and Connors and Murphy. That one was on, those well informed continue to say. That it may be on still with the Democratic nomination for the Presidency by wielding the League organization as a club, they also assert. The new third party movement will bear close watching. The friends of Mr. Bryan will see that it is done.

A new hotel for working women has been built by a Harlem church at the cost of $50,000. It is six stories high and will accommodate one hundred. The hotel is situated in Harlem right in the heart of the poorer quarter of that section. There is a laundry in the basement and also space for a bowling alley, which is yet to be equipped. The dining-room and kitchen occupy the ground floor, which is on the level with the street. There is a large parlor and a library on the floor above.

The other floors are devoted to sleeping quarters for the guests. The rooms open outside and have large wardrobes. Those who desire single rooms and board must pay $5 a week, others willing to share their room only need pay $3. This low rate places the hotel within reach of the class it was built for, the girl in the factory and behind the counter, who earns from $5 to $7 a week as an average and at the present time must live in the dark tenement or cheap boarding-house to her own moral detriment.

* * *

Revival of Corporal Punishment.

Strange to say, a movement has begun in educational circles for the revival of corporal punishment in the public schools of New York. The point made in its behalf is that sparing the rod is spoiling the child in many instances; that many of the cases reaching the truancy officers and Children's Court would not be heard of were the teacher empowered to use more than moral persuasion upon the disobedient pupil.

It is very doubtful though whether the Board of Education will sanction the renewal of corporal punishment. It was a thing very much abused while it was in force the last time and the authorities are not apt to brave the storm indignant parents will bring down upon them by allowing it.

August Belmont was recently interviewed on the subject of race track gambling by a representative of "The American." His viewpoint is not novel, rather it expresses the idea of the average sensible man on the subject. Mr. Belmont says there always has been betting and always will be. So far as the race track is concerned, it seems better that wages should be laid in the open than otherwise. This means that betting away from the track should be stopped. Mr. Belmont does not believe that more than 10 per cent. of the people who go to the races bet. So far as he is concerned, he seldom lays a wager. There are two reasons for that.

Firstly, he cares little for betting. Secondly, his position as racing manager makes it expedient that he should not be financially interested in the result, as some of the cases liable to be called before him might be the very ones where he had bet. One desire of Mr. Belmont is for a Government farm or farms that will raise thoroughbreds.

Some Large Expectance.

Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, wife of the well-known yachtman, who was Madeline Goddard, of Newport, the daughter of the late Col. William Goddard, receives $10,000,000 outright under the will of her father, and will eventually have twice that sum in addition. This puts her in the richest children class. Marshall Field III., who some day is to inherit $200,000,000, heads the list. The young daughter of Andrew Carnegie, with $100,000,000 as her expectancy, is second. John Nicholas Brown, with his fortune of $50,000,000, is third. Fourth on the list is William G. Iselin, with $30,000,000. The last is Lolita Armour, grandchild of the great packer. Her fortune some day will be $25,000,000.

EDWARD LISSNER.

BIG MEN AND LUXURY.

[New York Telegram.]

Edward H. Harriman, head of the Union and Southern Pacific systems, who probably makes more money than all the other railroad presidents of the country, is the worst dressed man in Wall street, and takes a pride in the fact. He has not even a valet to press his clothes, and the gray suit he wore this summer was baggy, shapeless and a sight to behold.

Mr. Harriman was leaving his offices with a visitor one day last week, bound for a dinner party. "Are you going to wear an evening suit, Mr. Harriman?" asked his friend.

"What difference does it make to you what I wear?" was the irritable response. "You can get a suit for fifty cents a night if you want one."

James J. Hill, who is used to roughing it in the Northwest and who never accepted a dollar's salary while he was president of the Great Northern, is somewhat of a Spartan in his habits and altogether indifferent as to his attire.

But in the railroad world, Oscar G. Murray, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, is regarded as the most luxurious of his craft. He aims at perfection in dress and in mode of life his tastes are Oriental. The most ornate railroad office in the country is the Baltimore and Ohio building in Baltimore. There Mr. Murray and his aids have surrounded themselves with every convenience and luxury the mind can conceive, such as private elevators, bathrooms, special cooks and private dining-rooms.

To quote Mr. Murray's press agent: "In this massive thirteen-story building, where Mr. Oscar G. Murray manages and directs the affairs of this great railroad as its thirteenth president, there is a variety of thirteen grades of marble in use.

"The marble in the president's room is Skyros, from Greece; that in his private office is Old Convent, or Coulded Sienna, from Italy, while the marble used in the mantel in his working office is Alps green from Italy.

"The world was practically scoured to get the different kinds of marble used in the interior decorations or to realize the effort made to produce the most effective appearance. Blocks from countries many thousand miles apart were brought together to produce the most perfect effect and greatest harmony in color."

When Mr. Murray boarded a steamship several months ago, to sail abroad, fourteen Baltimore and Ohio tugboats steamed along the opposite side of North river each bearing a letter spelling the name "Oscar G. Murray."

A RARE LINCOLN PORTRAIT.

[Boston Globe.]

A portrait of Abraham Lincoln, which those who are familiar with it believe to be a very rare one, hangs upon the walls of a Lewiston law office. At all events no one has yet been found who remembers to have seen one just like it among any of the very many portraits of the martyred President which have been published so frequently during the last few years in many of the leading magazines of the country.

The picture is a lithegraph, evidently taken from a crayon drawing, and shows Mr. Lincoln as a somewhat younger man than the majority of his portraits do.

Under it is a fac-simile of his autograph, together with the words: "Republican candidate for President, 1860," showing that it was evidently used as a campaign portrait during the campaign preceding his first election.

The portrait was obtained by the late John Read, father of the present owner of it, at Quincy, Ill., during that campaign, but who took the original from which it was made is unknown.

Some years ago a book salesman who saw it claimed to know something about it and said that it was taken soon after the convention at which Mr. Lincoln was nominated, and that the original photograph was taken at the request of Mr. Medill, of Chicago, for campaign purposes. He said further that when Mr. Lincoln went in to the photographer's to sit for the picture he had just come from the barber's, and his hair was plastered smoothly down upon his forehead, but that, happening to catch sight of himself in a glass, Mr. Lincoln remarked that no one would know him with his hair so smooth as that and ran his hands through it giving it the disheveled appearance of the portrait.

He said further that in making the enlargement for the lithograph the portrait was somewhat idealized and much of the natural ruggedness of Mr. Lincoln's features was smoothed out.

Whether this man was correct in his belief as to the origin of the portrait it is undoubtedly true that it is considerably idealized, the portrait, while retaining the essential features so well known, nevertheless making him a far handsomer man than he is currently reported to have been.

And yet Mr. Read, who had seen him often as a young man, always said that it was an excellent likeness, and that it looked just as Mr. Lincoln did at the time he made his speech at Quincy in the course of the famous debates with Stephen A. Douglass on October 13, 1858.

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 30.—[Special.]—Owing to the large number of horses now in training at the track here, the rule that has been in vogue of limiting the fields to twelve starters was set aside Saturday and the limit placed at fourteen. As a result several of to-day's events contained that number.

The first race, however, clearly demonstrated that the track is too narrow for such large fields. The race was at a mile, and in the scramble for position on the first turn Double Trouble, Jack Young and Mayor Duncan were caught in a jam and the trio went down, but fortunately the riders escaped with a bad shaking up, though Jockeys Trueman, Butler and Andrees were injured. The third race also brought out fourteen horses and another mix-up occurred, which resulted in Heron losing his rider.

The fourth race, a steeplechase handicap over the short course, was the feature event that terminated in a two-horse race. Full of Fun and Pete Vinegar were the only ones to finish, the former getting the decision by a length. D. G. Taylor came up a few minutes later, after repeatedly refusing to negotiate the last hurdle, and was awarded third money. Russell Sage refused to hurdle in the stretch, and Alice King unseated her rider at the first obstacle.

Just as the bugle was calling the horses to the post in the fifth race it was discovered that Rustle, which was entered for this event, was not eligible, as the conditions of the race called for no-winners of a race of $600 value at any time, or of four races since June 1, and the filly is reported to have won a $1,400 selling stake. All bets were declared off and the judges announced twenty minutes for a new book.

* * *

Accident In First Race.

In the opening event, an awful bunch of goods were brought together, and of these Belleview and Lachlache looked to be the best, and were made the favorites, the former never being better than 9 to 5, while the latter was held at 3 to 1. There was a scattering play on all the others, Jake Holtman got the fourteen off to nearly a perfect start, with Thespian in the lead, Lachache second and the Pet third. In the mad dash for the rail Jack Young, Mayor Duncan and Double Trouble all went down. Belleview got off in a very poor position, but closed up on the back stretch and took the lead, and stayed there, winning in the easiest kind of fashion by three lengths. Dapple Gold was off fairly well and had no trouble in getting out in the front, but at the end dropped behind Belleview and held that position, getting the place by five lengths. The Pet, a long shot, was always well up in a forward position, and got the show money.

The biggest book of the meeting was laid on the second race and the favorite, Moselle, closed at 4 to 1, being backed down from 6. Nearly every horse in the race was heavily supported and there was considerable play on the Respess filly, Caper, at 5 and 6 to 1. Moselle got away well and rushed out into the lead, holding it for the seven-furlong journey, winning by a length and a half. Dr. Lee Huffman received a hustling ride at the hands of little Bailey and got the place, being half a length in front of Gracchus, who was off nearly last, but showed a lot of game finishing qualities and got the show money. The latter colt was backed heavily, the price falling to 20 from 25.

* * *

Third Rail Scores.

Marion Moore and Catherine were supposed to be the good things in the third event, and both were heavily supported, the wise money going in on Catherine. Black Dress and Linda Lake were well supported, while the price on Third Rail took a boost. Off to a fair start, it was first one horse and then another that set the pace until the stretch was reached, where Third Rail came down on the outside in good going and got all the money, winning by a neck from Catherine, the good thing, which was always well up, but quit in the stretch. Vanen, a 30-to-1 shot, was second most of the way and managed to hang on long enough to get the short end of the purse. Black Dress was off nearly last, but closed a big gap and would have been closer up in a few more jumps. Linda Lake had a lot of early speed, but quit in the final drive.

In the steeplechase, fourth on the card, only two horses finished, Full of Fun beating Pete Vinegar by a length for first money. Five horses went to the post for this event with Full of Fun an odds-on favorite. Pete Vinegar was the second choice, but was not extensively played, going up from 2s to 19 to 5. The field was pretty well bunched for a short distance and then they began to string out. Russell Sage held the lead for the greater part of the journey and was running in third position when he refused the last jump in the stretch. At this point Full of Fun took command and showed the way to the wire. Pete Vinegar was closing strong in the last sixteenth. D. G. Taylor came up a couple of minutes late and was awarded the show money.

Centre Shot Wins Easily.

The fifth race resulted in another easy victory for Barney Schreiber's speedy filly, Centre Shot, the unbeaten daughter of Sain beating Cloyne by two lengths. The filly has been to the races three times and has been returned a winner on each occasion and consequently the bookies took no liberalities with her, offering 3 to 5 against her chances in the opening betting and being backed down to 11 to 20 post time. Centre Shot was off winging when the gate went up and opened up a winning lead in the first quarter and was never bothered, passing under the wire well homeching in reserve. Cloyne was best of the others and ran in second place throughout, being a length and a half to the good of Merrigo at the finish. The others were strung out.

The form players received an awful jolt in the last race of the day when Dr. Spruill, the favorite, which had been liberally supported, fell dis tant inside of the money. Doc Riddle furnished the winner in Shining Star, which was quoted at 7 to 1. The son of Rainbow came home first a half a length in advance of Devout Bonebrake, on which a heavy play was recorded, his price being forced down from 8s to 6s, started out at a merry clip and opened up a lead of three lengths, but he was unable to negotiate the distance and began to falter on the back stretch, where Devout assumed the lead, the latter giving way to the winner as he run through the stretch. Dr. Spruill ran well for the first three-quarters, then weakened and was fourth at the finish.

CHAT OF LATONIA.

Three horses went down in the opening event at the seven-eighths pole, Jack Young, Mayor Duncan and Double Trouble. It looked from the press box as if Double Trouble went down first, the other horses falling over him.

* * *

A fine Monday attendance was on hand and the crowd started off in good spirits, as the well-played favorite came home by himself.

* * *

Thespian was played for a good thing, being backed from 50 to 1 down to 10 to 1 at post time. The horse is a bad betting proposition, as he is a stump sucker.

* * *

"Slats" Davis, a Southern League umpire, was a visitor at the track. He tried to put a couple of good ones over, but his judgment was not as good in the racing game as it is on the diamond, as the decisions were against him, although he almost got one over on the squeeze play.

* * *

Dr. Lee Huffman showed improved form under the handling of J. Frank. He finished like a cyclone and was right there at the finish. This boy gives promise of making good in the near future.

* * *

Jockey Gaugel fell off of Heron just after the start. As his mount was in the last flight and on the outside, he escaped without any injury.

* * *

There was a plunge made on Sabodo, Catherine F., and finally the wise money was sent into the ring on Third Rail, who got up in the last jump to win by a close margin.

* * *

Jockey Andress was in a bad position when the horses fell in the first race. He escaped with a bad shaking up. Butler received a bruise on his arm and Trueman's back was wrenched. All the boys will be around in a few days.

* * *

A foul was claimed in the steeplechase, but not allowed. Full of Fun swerved to the outside rail going over the hurdle in the stretch jump, then over to the inner rail, where Peter Vinegar was making a gallant effort to land the long end of the purse. It looked to those who were not in a good position to see as if the cGrst gelding had fouled Peter Vinegar, but Jockey Ponock succeeded in getting the favorite under control before there was any interference. Full of Fun is a horse who likes to run on the rail, which caused him to swerve. There is no question that the judges were right in not allowing the foul, as it happened almost under their eyes and they are in the best position to judge.

* * *

* * *

Jockey H. Higgins fell off of Alice King going over the last jump, and escaped without injury.

* * *

All bets were declared off and twenty minutes given for a new book just before the horses were due to go to the post in the fifth event. Rustle was scratched, as she was not eligible to start. The race was for two-year-olds, nonwinners of a race of $600 value at any time, or of four races since June 1, selling purses excepted. The Cella filly having won a $1,500 selling stake in Canada, was not eligible, as it was a stake and not a purse race.

* * *

Jockey E. Martin's suspension ends tonight and he will be seen in the saddle on Tuesday. The coming lightweight has the leg up on four, Mamie Galligan in the first, Belle of Penzance in the second, Toddles in the third and Melyar in the fifth. Three of them have a good chance to land the long end of the purse.

* * *

The Schreiber horses are in excelent form at present, as they have been rested up at the track this summer and gradually trained into condition by Trainer Dave Henry.

* * *

The master of Woodlands, Barney Schreiber, was expected to arrive at the track to-day, but failed to put in an appearance. He stopped over to visit his breeding farm, near Bridgeton, Mo., and will get here later in the week.

*Fell.

The winner was much the best, went to the front after going a half and won with plenty in reserve. Dapple Gold ran fairly well, although tiring near the end. The Pet came from a good ways back the last quarter. Land Breeze was sharply impeded at the first turn and put up a good performance. Horseradish ran as if short and will improve. Double Trouble fell at the first turn, and Jack Young and Mayor Duncan were unable to avoid him.

2418—SECOND RACE—Seven furlongs; purse $500; for three-year-olds; selling. Start fair. Won easily; second and third driving. Winner, H. Oot & Co.'s ch. f., 3, Wadsworth—Turtle Dove. Trained by H. Oots. Value to winner $400. Time, :25 2-5, :51, 1:31 4-5.

Moselle, showing sudden improvement and lucky most of the way, was never in serious trouble, and won with plenty in reserve. Dr. Lee Huffman, poorly handled, gained steadily and finished with a rush. Gracchus came from a long way back and ran a winning race. Coon quit after going a good three-quarters. Caper can do better. Belle Scott had no mishaps and ran far below her best form.

*Lost rider.

Third Rail came with a rush the last furlongs, and, wearing down Catherine in the last few strides, won drawing away. Catherine, after forcing the early pace, weakened slightly near the end. Vanen ran a good race and was right there all the way. Marion Moore quit badly after going a half. Linda Lake tired as if short. Black Dress lacked speed and can do much better. Heron was crowded back and his rider unseated.

Full of Fun and Pete Vinegar outclassed the others and had the finish between them, Full of Fun drawing away in the closing strides. Russell Sage showed good speed and fenced well, but refused stretch hurdle. Alice King failed to show much speed, and in jumping the stretch hurdle jumped into the paddock and unseated her rider. D. G. Taylor, after much persuasion, was made to jump stretch hurdle, refusing several times, and took third money.

Shining Star moved up resolutely after suffering slight interference; wore down devout in the stretch run. The latter closed up a big gap and managed to get to the front at the top of the stretc, but was not good enough to overcome the rush of the winner. Bonebrake had the most speed, but weakened under punishment in the final drive.

CHAT OF LATONIA.

Three horses went down in the opening event at the seven-eighths pole, Jack Young, Mayor Duncan and Double Trouble. It looked from the press box as if Double Trouble went down first, the other horses falling over him.

* * *

A fine Monday attendance was on hand and the crowd started off in good spirits, as the well-played favorite came home by himself.

* * *

Thespian was played for a good thing, being backed from 50 to 1 down to 10 to 1 at post time. The horse is a bad betting proposition, as he is a stump sucker.

* * *

"Slats" Davis, a Southern League umpire, was a visitor at the track. He tried to put a couple of good ones over, but his judgment was not as good in the racing game as it is on the diamond, as the decisions were against him, although he almost got one over on the squeeze play.

* * *

Dr. Lee Huffman showed improved form under the handling of J. Frank. He finished like a cyclone and was right there at the finish. This boy gives promise of making good in the near future.

* * *

Jockey Gaugel fell off of Heron just after the start. As his mount was in the last flight and on the outside, he escaped without any injury.

* * *

There was a plunge made on Sabodo, Catherine F., and finally the wise money was sent into the ring on Third Rail, who got up in the last jump to win by a close margin.

* * *

Jockey Andress was in a bad position when the horses fell in the first race. He escaped with a bad shaking up. Butler received a bruise on his arm and Trueman's back was wrenched. All the boys will be around in a few days.

* * *

A foul was claimed in the steeplechase, but not allowed. Full of Fun swerved to the outside rail going over the hurdle in the stretch jump, then over to the inner rail, where Peter Vinegar was making a gallant effort to land the long end of the purse. It looked to those who were not in a good position to see as if the cGrst gelding had fouled Peter Vinegar, but Jockey Ponock succeeded in getting the favorite under control before there was any interference. Full of Fun is a horse who likes to run on the rail, which caused him to swerve. There is no question that the judges were right in not allowing the foul, as it happened almost under their eyes and they are in the best position to judge.

P. M. Civill arrived at the track today, coming from St. Louis.

Jockey H. Higgins fell off of Alice King going over the last jump, and escaped without injury.

All bets were declared off and twenty minutes given for a new book just before the horses were due to go to the post in the fifth event. Rustle was

COLIN TAKES ANOTHER RACE

WINNINGS CLOSE TO RECORD.

Noted Eastern Turfman Now Only $14,000 Behind World's Mark Set By Duke of Portland.

JOCKEY STONE IS SUSPENDED.

BRIGHTON BEACH, L. I., Sept. 30.—James P. Keene's Colin, at the prohibitive price of 1 to 4, won the colt's half of the Brighton Beach Produce Stakes of $9,000 at six furlongs at Brighton Beach to-day.

The victory of Colin and third money with Meggs Hill in the filly half event make the total winnings of Mr. Keene for the year $362,594, which is $14,000 behind the world's record made by the Duke of Portland in 1889.

At the meeting of the stewards of the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association the license of steeplechase Jockey Harry Stone was suspended for the remainder of the year of 1907. No reason was given for the ruling.

The final meeting at the Beach was ushered in this afternoon under auspicious conditions. As the big features of an excellent card the Produce Stakes were entitled to the call. These events were divided, one being for colts and geldings, the other for fillies. Each event was worth close to $15,000 to the winner. In addition to this two fine handicaps were decided.

Interest in the Produce Stakes for colts and geldings centered in the appearance of Colin, the Futurity winner and unbeaten colt from the stable of James R. Keene. Mr. Keene also had a couple of eligibles for the filly event in Masquerade and Meggs Hill. Summaries:

THE RESULTS AT HAMILTON.

Cold Weather and Other Conditions Prevent Big Crowd From Attending.

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 30.—Cold, raw weather and a track deep and holding are not elements conducive to a large attendance at a race track, and as a consequence the crowd on hand this afternoon at Hamilton was very light. The day's feature was in the fifth, the conditions of which called for hunters, with gentlemen riders. Tom Shaw was a good thing in the opener and Eonite in the second. Summaries:

FACTS ABOUT THE LIPTON CHALLENGE

ten in the afternoon. That financier usually does his talking for publication after the stock market has had a break and is ready to buy. The stock market is likely to prove a good trading one during the whole of October, though it will be two-sided. We think many quick turns may be made, which will yield good results. The range for the present seems to be 3 or 4 points.—(C. I. Hudson & Co. to S. C. Henning & Co.

New York.—Canadian Pacific was the sensational feature, running up very sharply on short covering, but it is simply a case of a limited supply of the stock for loaning purposes and represents the necessity of those who have gone short for making good their contracts. There would be a good deal more of the same thing throughout the list if other stocks were equally hard to borrow. Money ruled a good deal firmer, but this is only natural over the first of the month. Time funds remain in fair supply, with no special change in rate. In view of the tremendous liquidation which has occurred in Wall street, it is not probable that money will reach excessive rates here during the autumn, as a certain supply of funds must be kept by the banks on call. While the outlook is certainly not very stimulating for an advance in prices, the market would do well enough if it could be freed from the aggressive bear attacks. Possibly the jump in Canadian Pacific to-day may make them a little more cautious in other directions.—(Post & Flagg to John W. & D. S. Green.

New York.—New lines of short stock, it is believed, were put out on the rally and the short interest, which is now quite large, was not materially reduced as a result of to-day's transactions. Sentiment is still quite bearish and lower prices are generally predicted. The consensus of opinion among floor brokers was that the market might rally a little further, but they did not expect it to hold. Most of the disagreeable features have been discounted, we believe, and we do not expect to see any material reaction from the present level of prices. The market is so highly professional, however, that it will likely continue irregular for the time being. On any reaction we continue to advise purchases.—(E. & C. Randolph to E. E. Paine & Co.

New York.—The market ruled irregular, rallying sharply on short covering, reacting to secondary low points and advancing again toward the close. London sold 20,000 shares on balance, with some Paris selling of stocks in evidence. An all around readjustment of economic affairs is now in progress and in due course we believe that our great corporations will emerge from chaos into a position where capital will be attracted in volume to the many bargains now offering on the exchanges.—(Ennis & Stoppani to E. H. Morgan & Co.

New York.—All the morning the principal features of trading on the Stock Exchange were the covering of shorts, partly offset by heavy selling for London account. It was current gossip that 75,000 shares of shorts were covered in the first two hours, and it was estimated that at the same time London sold 40,000 shares of Steel common and preferred.—(Ex. Norton & Co. to John W. & D. S. Green.

New York.—The next things to anticipate are the coming speeches of the President, but no one expects him to show any different attitude than heretofore, and unless his expressions contain something heretofore unthought of, the chances are they will have little effect on the market. Railroad earnings coming to hand are perhaps of more importance. They continue to show good gross increases, but by reason of increased cost of labor a loss in net. These facts are in line with Mr. Hill's interview of this morning, which was regarded by the street as more or less pessimistic. The bank clearings having fallen off was also a discouraging feature, but the decline of the week past seems to have discounted these facts to some extent and some further improvement in the immediate future seems more than likely.—(Miller & Co. to John L. Dunlap.

New York.—An attack was made on St. Paul, which caused a sharp break, and the rumor was circulated that the dividend would be cut in the near future. Great Northern and Northern Pacific were notably weak at the opening, probably on account of Mr. Hill's speech, but they rallied easily and buying seemed good. Interest in the President's speech seemed to wane toward afternoon, as the belief began to extend that it would not be as radical as had been predicted. Call money rates were stiff again, but considerable easing is expected after to-morrow. There seems to be reasonable probability of gold imports during the next month. The situation is still mixed, but the railroad stocks seem to be readily absorbed.—(A. O. Brown & Co. to Hunt, Bridgeford & Co.

New York.—The stock market was feverish, with a slightly improved tone, and in the last half hour the shorts in Canadian Pacific were given a drive, which resulted in a 14-point rally from the low. The action of Canadian Pacific is a good example of the conditions prevailing in a great many of the standard high-priced issues and should serve the bear element a lesson when selling the market to a standstill at this level. There was not much news of importance, it being rumored that the President's speech would be conservative and have no direct bearing on Wall street interests. The presence of a large short interest should be reckoned as somewhat of a sustaining influence and should tend to check any immediate se. ere decline from these levels. We would not be surprised to see the market rally considerably further.—(W. L. Lyons & Co.

New York.—The market to-day was a repetition of the closing days of last week. After the market had been subjected to a flood of selling orders at the opening and prices had fallen away, in several cases leaving stocks at a new low level, the report went out that a house which had been a big seller for some time past had covered and then a scramble of shorts to cover was made and prices rallied about 2 points. But after the shorts had covered the demand suddenly stopped and again prices receded. Later a feverish tone was evident, with some of the rally lost. Fears were entertained regarding the speeches of the President on his tour this week and some bear hammering and liquidation resulted. Afternoon prices ruled quiet and a firmer tone prevailed. The developments this week may not be of a bullish nature, but we believe railroad stocks are excellent purchases on recessions.—(J. S. Bache & Co. to Washington Flexner & Co.

STOCK MARKET REVIEW.

New York, Sept. 30.—Money on call strong and higher at 5@6½ per cent.; ruling rate 6; closing bid, 5; offered at 5½; time loans firm and quiet; 60 days 5½@5¾; 90 days 5¾@6; six months 6 asked; prime mercantile paper 7. Sterling exchange firm, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.8250@4.8255 for demand and at $4.8246@4.8205 for 60-day bills; commercial bills $4.81¾@4.81¼. Bar silver 67½c. Mexican dollars 52¾c. Government bonds steady. Railroad bonds irregular.

The movement in prices in the stock market to-day was regarded as due rather to the adjustment of speculative contracts among professional operators than to any new view of the conditions. The bear side last week, and they took advantage of the outside selling attracted over the week to cover extensive short lines to-day. The selling induced by last week's sharp decline was most pronounced to-day for London account. From the lower level of prices at the start there was a brisk recovery and a show of vigorous strength for a time, but with a reduction of the short interest and the satisfaction of the demand from that source the market sank back into a mood of uncertainty and of irregular fluctuations.

The money market reflected the preparations for the October settlements, as is usually the case on the last day of the month, but the strain was so far short of stringency that the effect was rather to increase the disposition of the shorts to cover. Call money did not get above 6 per cent.

The later dullness of the stock market was due in part to the postponement beyond the expected hour of the delivery of President Roosevelt's speech at Canton, making it probable that its publication would be delayed until after the day's session of the stock market was over. There was some revision of last week's estimates of what the substance of this address would be, but this was accompanied by suggestions that the presidential utterances, from which disturbance of financial sentiment was dreaded, might be looked for in later addresses.

Underlying the present financial situation is the general conviction that a period of abstention from speculative activity is essential to the safe working out of the needs to be met. The rapid demand for securities, which is one consequence of this abstention, opens the way for bear attack. Hopeful views are reported among the ranks of the bankers and in other ranks of capital, nevertheless. The October dividend and interest payments, according to the estimate of the Journal of Commerce, will amount to $160,000,000, which is the largest ever made for this period of the year, most withstanding reductions in dividends of some companies, notably the Coppers, and readjustments of dividend periods by some of the large railroad companies, which would also affect the comparison. To meet these large disbursements there are large accumulations of cash which involve temporary withdrawals from the active uses of the money market, but redeposits of these funds will bring them back to the money market. The availability of this large sum has had little reflection in the immediate reinvestment demand for securities in the New York securities market, but it is so much replenishment of the capital fund nevertheless. This fund finds greater attraction yet in the money market and in more direct forms of lending.

Assertions from railroad officials of the sustained volume of their traffic, and especially of the great grain movement, were features of the weekly interviews from that source. Copper weakened in London, but no change was announced here. The selling of stocks for London account here was an element in the recovery in the foreign exchange rate. Anxiety was allayed over the Berlin situation, which has been much dreaded as the first of Oct. obligations approached. The punishment administered to the shorts in Canadian Pacific was illustrated by a 15-point rise in that stock and the disposition of bears to cover elsewhere was emphasized.

FOREIGN FINANCIAL.

Sterling, Sept. 30.—Rates for money were higher in the market to-day and the demand increased, owing to the consols settlement and various calls. Discounts were firmer. Trading on the Stock Exchange opened in a cheerless fashion with an easy tendency. There was more moderate liquidation in all departments including consols, and the Paris settlement further operated against an increase of business. First-class securities eased with consols in spite of the fact that the Bank of England obtained $2,500,000 in gold in the open market. Germany and France showed the remaining $2,000,000. Americans weakened in the forenoon in sympathy with Saturday's break in New York and the poor New York bank statement, but Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk improved fractionally after the publication of the monthly statements of those roads. More cheerful advices from New York in the afternoon arrested the downward tendency. Union Pacific improved and imparted moderate strength to the market which closed steady. Copper shares at the close were steady at above the worst quotations of the day. Kaffirs were flat on Paris liquidation. Closing: Consols for both money and the account 82; Anaconda 7⅜; Atchison 87⅛; do preferred 92½; Baltimore and Ohio 92; Canadian Pacific 163½; Chesapeake and Ohio 83½; Chicago Great Western 9⅝; Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul 120½; De Beers 21¼; Denver and Rio Grande 23½; do preferred 70; Erie 20¾; do first preferred 47; do second preferred 38; Grand Trunk 22⅝; Illinois Central 140; Louisville and Nashville 100; Missouri, Kansas and Texas 24¼; New York Central 107; Norfolk and Western 72; do preferred 84; Ontario and Western 33; Pennsylvania 61¼; Rand Mines 4⅞; Reading 46⅝; Southern Railway 15⅝; do preferred 56; Southern Pacific 84⅜; Union Pacific 129⅞; do preferred 84; United States Steel 27¼; do preferred 90¼; Wabash 12; do preferred 20; Spanish fours 91. Berlin, Sept. 30.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was dull and prices were weak. Exchange on London 20.40@20.45 checks. Discount rates: Short bills (for settlement) 5 per cent.; three months bills 5½ per cent.

Paris, Sept. 30.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were heavy. Three per cent. rentas 94f 30c for the account. Exchange on London 25f 12c for checks.

LAWYERS OBJECT

TO REMOVAL OF COUNTY COMMISSIONER'S OFFICE.

Committee Will Wait Upon Fiscal Court In Regard To the Matter.

The members of the bar, of whom there were about fifty present, held a meeting in Judge Shackelford Miller's court yesterday afternoon and passed a resolution asking the Fiscal Court not to remove the Jefferson Circuit Court Commissioner's office from its present location. With the approaching completion of the remodelling and repairs upon the courthouse the question of allotment of space to the officeholders has arisen. It was some time ago resolved that the County Court should be removed from the third floor of the courthouse annex to the room in the east wing of the main building formerly occupied by Judge Kirby's court. Judge Kirby, the plan is, will take the court room vacated by the County Court, which is opposite that of Judge Miller, thus placing the entire Chancery branch on one floor. This change also contemplates the removal of the office of Mrs. Rosa A. Stonestreet, County School Superintendent, from the smaller rooms adjacent to Judge Kirby's old court room. One of these rooms will be used for office work and the other for the Juvenile Court. Therefore it was incumbent upon the Fiscal Court to provide Mrs. Stonestreet with quarters elsewhere. A committee appointed to take up the question of allotment, consisting of Magistrates Robb, O'Connor and Sullivan, will in its recommendation to-day to the Fiscal Court for space allotment give Mrs. Stonestreet the large office room formerly occupied by the commissioner and will give the latter official the smaller room formerly used as an adjunct to the Law Library.

However, at yesterday's meeting it was unanimously decided that this arrangement, besides restricting the Law Library to one room, would seriously interfere with the work of the commissioner by giving him quarters that were too small. It was the sense of the meeting that Mrs. Stonestreet should be provided with quarters by partitioning off a portion of the former office of the commissioner, which would give her a space of 18x33 feet. By way of putting this matter before the Fiscal Court the meeting determined to appoint a committee of ten lawyers, to which the Circuit Judges were added as ex-officio members. Judge T. L. Burnett, who presided over the meeting, named the following lawyers as members of the committee: A. P. Humphrey, John B. Baskin, C. B. Seymour, Edward J. McDermott, Stanley Sloss, Edmund F. Trabue, John S. Jackman, Wallace Coulter and Robert L. Page. All of these members of the committee were present and nearly all of them spoke in favor of making this request of the Fiscal Court. It was furthermore resolved by the meeting that all other members of the bar who could do so should attend the meeting for this purpose.

Arbitrate Labor Disputes.

Dr. E. B. Patterson, pastor of Trinity church, introduced the resolution favoring arbitration of labor disputes and for investigations of differences and the establishment of the eight-hour day for laborers. He pointed out that this last question has been postponed and avoided too long by all previous conferences, and that the time to act upon it has at last come. The resolution was passed unanimously, and will be reported for action to the General Council:

Resolved, We most respectfully petition the coming General Conference to give expression of unmistakable sympathy with labor, to urge the importance of settling difficulties between labor and capital by means of arbitration to voice an eight-hour day for the labor world.

We also petition the General Conference to speak with emphasis in favor of world-wide peace and urge the gradual reduction of armies and navies and the settlement of international difficulties by arbitration.

The Committee on the State of the Church reported as follows:

These are stirring times. From the remarkable disclosures of graft and corruption that are being made from time to time in high places and in business management, the feeling has gone out that the world is growing worse and that the church is failing short. We are convinced that this is not the correct view. It is certain that this corruption is not simply a matter of this present time, but it is rather a condition of long standing. In former days the evil was covered up or winked at. The church seemed to feel that it was not able to cope with it or that it was not within its province to do so. The reason for the present situation is that the church is awake, and hence is not a sign of evil times, but of the coming millenium. The present indications are signs of a veritable revival of truth and righteousness.

As to our beloved Commonwealth: It has long been known as the State of feuds, of whisky and of machine rule in politics. Good men have groaned but have not been able to see the light of the coming emancipation. But the church has not been asleep. God has not been; the dawn has been advancing, slowly at first and scarcely recognized by thousands of our people. But now the east is red with the bursting day; the clouds and darkness of the rule of the organized liquor traffic and machine rule and the corruption of the ballot, are dissipating. We do not preach party politics but we do proclaim the opportunity given to all parties in the coming elections of defeating God grant forever! that organized political autocracy that has so long cursed our State. This is the opportunity of the Church. In this same connection and as an evidence of this blessed dawning it is a pleasure to commend the appointment of the present reform administration of the City of Louisville and the work it has been doing in cleaning up the city.

Kentucky is wealthy in timber, agricultural and manufacturing products, to say nothing of her mineral wealth, but above every other thing, in men; our mountains and plains are wealthy in men. The business of our church in this State is to delve for them, cultivate them, develop them for the use of the kingdom. So far as our church has been doing this work it has done well. The recommendation of your committee is that we enthusiastically and prayerfully continue to work the State for its unguessed wealth of men, and develop them for the kingdom of God.

GEORGE V. MORRIS, Chairman,
A. H. FELTS,
J. A. COLLEDGE,
ISAIAH CLINE.

On Sabbath Observance.

The report of the Committee on Sabbath Observance, composed of F. V. Fisher, D. W. Brown and M. M. Roundtree, was read and adopted. The report is as follows.

There can be no debate as to the importance of the Sabbath. Every interest of the church, the home, the workingman and society demands its preservation as a holy day and not a holiday.

But it cannot be preserved in Kentucky without a heroic fight. Sunday excursions are rapidly growing. Sunday theaters and amusement parks are crowded, church people are relaxing their standards and prominent men are openly running for high office on the platform of open saloons on God's day.

Wherefore, we call upon our pastors and people to rally to the defense of the Sabbath, to make an aggressive crusade against Sabbath desecration, to politically oppose any man or party that opposes the Sabbath and to so preach the truth on the Sabbath problem, that our people will fully realize that the supreme reason for keeping the Sabbath day is not custom, tradition or policy, but because it is the commandment of God, and that Sabbath desecration is sin against God.

The Rev. Dr. Patterson, when seen after adjournment, expressed himself delighted with the success of the conference, and expressed his thanks to the people of Louisville, who had helped make it so.

DIED IN DAYTON

CAPT. THOMAS D. WALLACE WAS UNION VETERAN.

Had Gone To Ohio On Visit and Suffered Attack of Acute Indigestion.

The body of Capt. Thomas D. Wallace, who died suddenly in Dayton, O., Friday night, arrived here yesterday morning and was taken to the family residence at 752 Fifth street, from where the funeral will be held this morning at 10 o'clock. The interment will be in St. Louis cemetery and the body will be accompanied to the grave by old comrades who served with Capt. Wallace in the Civil War.

The death of Capt. Wallace was due to acute indigestion brought on by the infirmities of old age. He had gone to Dayton to make a brief visit, having left his home only two weeks ago. At that time he was in apparently good health, but became ill within a few days after his arrival at Dayton. His illness did not seem to be of a critical nature, and on Friday morning, the night of his death, he said that he felt well enough and believed that he would go down into the city. Being suddenly stricken last night he died within a few minutes.

Mr. Wallace was a native of Ireland, and came to Louisville with his parents when he was fifteen years of age. At the opening of the Civil War he enlisted in the First Kentucky volunteers, and after serving for two years was promoted to the rank of First Lieutenant. Since the close of the war he has been looked upon as being one of the most important members of the G. A. R.

At the time of his death he was seventy years of age. He is survived by his widow and six children, as follows: James, John, Robert, William and Nellie Wallace, and Mrs. Mary Schuck.

HERMAN GOOTEE MUST RETURN TO LEBANON.

Herman Gootee, the young man who was arrested last Wednesday by Detectives Condley and Brown on a warrant from Lebanon, Ky., charging him with housebreaking, was arraigned in Police Court yesterday morning and consigned to the charge of Detective Brown, who was authorized to return with him to Lebanon to-day. He will be delivered upon his arrival there into the hands of officials of Marion county. The charge against Gootee is robbing a house more than two years ago, which deed he admitted to the local detectives. He said that at the time he was drunk and was induced to the robbery by another man, who escaped and who has not yet been located.

BOOST FOR KENTUCKY BY TRADE JOURNAL.

Commissioner MacDonald Reports Local Capital Seeking Investment In Local Enterprises.

"Louisville, the Home of Achievement, Daughter of the East, Mother of the West, the Link that Binds North and South," are the words characterizing this city that appear in an advertisement inserted in the Manufacturers' Record of Baltimore this month by the Bureau of Industries. Not only is there an ad in this trade journal, the editor of the paper also has given Louisville space editorially, commending the action of the Comemrcial Club in establishing the bureau. He writes:

"If Kentucky's soil had been as intelligently worked by Kentuckians as the soil of other States, if Kentucky's hills had been delved as scientifically as the hills of other States, Kentucky would to-day be one of the foremost States in the Union.

"For under such conditions, with the thought of the State concentrated upon progress and prosperity, rather than upon politics and feuds, Kentucky would to-day rank in population and wealth command with other States in proportion to its marvelous rich natural resources, for few States in all the Union are quite so abundantly blessed with a combination of natural resources and attractions as Kentucky."

The advertising of the Bureau of Industries and the city has shown good results. Yesterday Commissioner A. T. MacDonald received inquiries from five capitalists from different parts of the country regarding Louisville's advantages as a manufacturing center. The capitalists, in making these inquiries, stated that it is their intention to establish different concerns in some cities, and that they are now considering Louisville as a location.

Yesterday Commissioner Macdonald also was in receipt of capital from eleven local investors, who place it with the bureau for investment. The bulk of the capital ranges from $1,000 to $5,000 from each investor.
